THE SILVER DEBATE IN THE SEN-ATE DRAGGING ALONG.

A Little Excitement In It Yesterday Civil Service in the Pension Bureau-Other News From Washington To-Day.

VASHINGTON, D. C., October 18,-The n of the Senate yesterday was the exciting one held in a long time. Sen was sharp at times, and tinged with aerimony. At one time it looked as if there would be a personal encounter between Senators Morgan and Washburn. The fiery Southerner indirectly challenged the Minnesotan. The storm serves as an index to the feeling of impatience and resistance which has been gradually amplified in his speech what he has been saying privately for two weeks, and the time may be extended further back still in referring to Senator Hill's utterances. led by Senators Butler and Pugh, have been trying for the past two or three days to get their fellow Democratic Senators to agree to submit the entire question to a party conference and abide by the re-sult of its decision, and it is understood that Senator Gorman, chairman of the cau-cus, has the question under advisement. There is a possibility of a joint Democratic caucus of both the House and the Senate, as suggested by Senator Hill in debate yes-terday, and acquiesced in by Senator

All the members of the Senate are beginning to feel that the present strain can not last a great while longer, and that a desperate effort will be made to find relief in some direction. The silver men court adjournment, and appear confident that the result would be favorable to them.

o'clock this morning, at the expiration of the recess taken yesterday evening. Mr. Morgan took the floor, on the motion of Mr. [Special to The Indianapolis News.] Senate resumed its session at 10 Dolph to amend the journal so as to show the presence of Mr. Allen when the roll was called at 6:30 o'clock Monday evening, that Senator having failed to answer when his name was called. Mr. Morgan said that while the decision cited yesterday by Mr. Hill, from the 144th United by Mr. Hill, from the 144th United States Supreme Court Reports, might be twisted and perverted into a support of his (Mr. Hill's) position, as a judicial decision, it could not be placed in that category except by the artfulness of an astute politician. A fair-minded lawyer could not do it. The Supreme Court merely decided that the House of Representatives, under the constitution, had the right to make their own rules for ascertaining and recording the fact that a quorum was present. There were men in the world whose consciences were was present. There were men in the world whose consciences were so easy that they could follow the Supreme Court in all its decisions, who could bend their consciences to any purpose that political necessity required at any time, but such men had no just conception of the rights of the representatives of the people and of the States. Such persons were ready on any occasion, when it served their purpose and premoted their political prosperity or any occasion, when it served their purpose and promoted their political prosperity or their desire to deprive a minority of all its rights and all its powers in order, that their wills may have surreme sway in the country. It might suit men of that class to follow the Supreme Court around and be willing to take an oath of allegiance to the opinions of the court to-day, and change the oath to-morrow when the decision of the court changed. That, Mr. Morgan said, did not suit him, and he referred to the decision of that court that no paper money issued by the Government or a national bank could be legal tender, which was not agreeable to a great [Special to The Indianapolis News.] no paper money issued by the Government or a nutional bank could be legal tender, which was not agreeable to a great many people in the United States. Thereupon, he said, Congress, with great liberality, increased the court from seven to nine for that purpose. It was not for him to say, but the people of the United States, or a great many of them, believed it was done in order to get men upon the bench who would reverse that decision and decide that paper-money obligations issued by the Government were legal tender.

MR. MORGAN DEFENDS HIMSELF. Mr. Hoar said that the nominations of the two new judges were sent to the Senate before the legal tender decision was an

Mr. Morgan replied that he might be wrong in his history of the facts, but he did Mr. Hoar said he knew the facts as he stated were correct if he knew anything in this world. Although the statement, repeated now by Morgan, gained currency, it was without the slightest foundation. Mr. Morgan disclaimed that he had intimated that the twojudges were appointed for that purpose, but so the people believed. Referring to Mr. Hill's reserence to his (Mr. Morgan's) connection with the Confederacy, Mr. Morgan said the eleven States which went out of the Union did so not to dissent from the constitution, but to preserve it. He had more respect for those who had the pluck to shoulder a gun and zo to the front than for those who continually referred to that period but remained at home. He was not alarmed when he heard one of these gentlemen refer to his attitude in 1861. No honest soldier who had fought him in the war ever did. It was only those who hired substitutes and pleading the baby act remained at home and were in the habit of rising in the Senate; and, referring to the fact that he (Mr. Morgan) had participated in the secession of the South, said he was not ashamed of the fact. SENATOR VOORHEES'S PLAN. dges were appointed for that purpose,

SENATOR VOORHEES'S PLAN. Senator Voorhees said to-day in reply to a question by the representative of the Associated Press that he would make an effort to continue the present recess system inaugurated last evening. He says that his from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., and that he is of the opinion that this will prove the best

The Anti-Repeal Democrata Are Circu-Inting a Call For One.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 18.—Causus is now the order of the day outside of the routine proceedings in the Senate. Real z ng as they do that it is next to impossible to agree upon any substitute for the re peal bill as it stands without a caucus been for the last two or three days moving in the direction of securing a meeting of the entire Democratic side of the chamber for the purpose of agreeing upon a party measure, and the opening of the session this morning found this work in active progress. Senator Vest had prepared a formul call and was circulating it among members. This call is directed to Senator Gorman, as chairman of the Democratic caucus, and it not only asks him to call the caucus, but pledges the signers to abide by its decision. Mr. Vest has regelyed sixteen signatures, all of them anti-repeal men. The silver men sign the call without hesitation.

The repeal men appear to be holding off, and it would at this time seem to be doubtful whether or not they will agree to the caucus. If they, or a majority of them, do not agree to it, it is doubtful whether the call will be issued. It is believed that Mr. Gorman would act favorably upon the request if he thought a caucus would be productive of results, but if any considerable percentage of members refuse to join in the request, or to abide by the decision, in case a decision is reached, he would probably decide that such a meeting would be barren of results, and productive of more harm than benefit to his party, and then refuse to call the Democratic Senators together. The call being circulated does not specify any time for meeting.

DEMOCRATS ARE DISSATISFIED. Not Enough Removals Are Being Made In the Pension Office To Suit Them.

(Special to The Indianapolis News.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 18 .- Attention was called to-day by one of the officials of the Pension Office to the fact that the Democrats and the administration are adhering much more strongly to the civil service doctrine and retaining employes who are meritorious and whose work does them credit than their Republican predeeessors were. In this branch of the Interior Department there are employed about fifteen hundred clerks and forty-nine of sections, supervising examiners and principal examiners. In fact, these forty-nine are the principal office-holders of the bureau. Thirty of these men under this adrean. Injety of these men under this administration are Democrats and nineteen are Republicans. Under the Republican regime forty-nine out of the forty-nine were Republicans within a very short time after that party took hold. It seems to be the intention of the Secretary of the Interior and the Pension Commissioner to retain all the Republicans whose work entities them to a retantion and to "houve" the others the Republicans whose work entitles them to a retention and to "bounce" the others. The work has been going on systematically since this administration took hold and a great many vacancies were created in the bureau—even some old soldiers lost their official head—but it can be safely said that hardly one of these was discharged but for incompetency. The Democrats are complaining bitterly of this fact, all of whom desire a place made for them, but the policy has been clearly outlined and the officials say they mean to stick to it.

Representative Houk, of Ohio. has introduced a similar bill, and brought to the rescue a lot of testimony showing that there were a great many efficient clerks dismissed between March and May, 1889, for political reasons. Mr. Bynum says there are a hundred or more of them in Indiana, and the committee having the proposition under consideration is reported to be favorable to the measure.

THE CONGRESS OF BANKERS.

CONTROLLER ECKELS DISCUSSES FINANCIAL CONDITIONS.

The Causes That Led To the Stringency and the Remedy For Them-Reasons Why the Sherman Law Should Be Repealed.

CHICAGO, October 18 .- After the meeting had been called to order and a prayer had been offered, the program at the Bankers' Congress was begun at the Art Institute this morning by an address of welcome by Mayor Harrison. When the Mayor had set the ball rolling President William H. R. Hawn, of the American Bankers' Association, made a speech. The time of the congress was then taken up for a short time by coll-call and reports of officers.

When these routine matters had been disposed of, the Hon. James H. Eckels, Controller of the Currency, appeared to make one of the principal addresses of the morn-ing. The hall was not crowded, but all hose who were present listened with intense interest to Mr. Eckels's words. Considering he financial difficulties through which the country has passed since Mr. Eckels came into office, the bankers were especially in-terested to know what he would have to

CONTROLLER ECKELS'S ADDRESS.

Say.

CONTROLLER ECKELS'S ADDRESS.

Doubts have arisen in my own mind as to the propriety of one who is not a practical banker undertaking to discuss before this assemblage of experienced men questions bearing upon the conduct and operation of banks. And yet, because of the official position which happens to be mine, it is not inappropriate that I should be here, if for no other reason than to form your personal acquaintance. Nor is it impossible but that from the vantage ground of having under the law the supervision of a system of banking which embraces within its fold almost four thousand national banks, capitalized to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars and having within their keeping more than three billions of the people's money. I might utter something gathered from an experience, which, if brief in space of time, has at least been "big with events," in the history of American banking.

It is no exaggeration of statement to, say that the happenings of the months past from May to September, must be accounted the most remarkable, in every phase of financial bearing, ever experienced by the American people. Heretofore in our financial distresses, the test of solvency has always been applied to store and factory, to great industrial enterprises and railway corporations, but within the period of these months an affrighted people, fearful of the resultant effects of a financial system, vitiated by ill-advised and ill-considered legislation, became for the first time doubtful of the distinctively financial institutions of the country, the banks, and as a consequence a steady drain upon deposits was begun until within the period of two months from May 4 to July 12, from national banks alone had been drawn out more than $198,000,000, and from State, savings and private ones a sum as great, not for the output of the distinctively financial banks alone had been drawn out more than $198,000,000, and from State, savings and private ones a sum as great, not for the output of the distinctively financial insti more than $198,000,000, and from State, savings and private ones a sum as great, not for the purposes of trade or investment, but to lie in wasteful idleness, thus rendering the soundest institutions helpless, and complete currency starvation in the midst of absolute plenty. These months witnessed the closing of more than 150 national banks and not less than 500 State, savings and private ones, many of which under ordinary circumstances would have been solvent and, under fostering care and improved conditions, have reopened their doors for business again to enjoy the confidence of the very ones most doubtful of them.

To-day so greatly has the situation changed enjoy the confidence of the very ones most doubtful of them.

To-day so greatly has the situation changed that, having in mind the past, both in the severity of the strain undergone, and the long continuance of it, it would be, in the light-of present conditions, both unfair and unjust to deny that the bankers of this country have exhibited masterful skill in coping with a situation rendered complex beyond anything heretofore known, by the withdrawal of currency by depositors on the one hand, and the pleadings for assistance on the part of merchants and manufacturers on the other. The course Dursued has caused no depositor to complain, while the generous treatment of mercantile interests in extension of credit and renewal of paper, has prevented a panic and renewal of paper, has prevented a panic in other directions, the far-reaching effect of which can not be estimated.

THE NECESSITIES OF THE HOUR. the ability of our people to withstand the severest of financial ailment it will not do to count too much upon the progress made toward recovery and the recuperative powers shown. Complete return to financial health can not be had so long as the first great cause, which covered all the land with doubt and uncertainty and filled the people's minds with lear as to the stability of our financial institutions, yet remains to plague the lines or business, create distrust at home and abroad as to the value of American securities, and bring to naught the efforts of these who, in the midst of present disaster and threatened ruin, yet maintained inli laith in the coming of better times. Until our financial laws accord with those that govern the world's trade, our currency takes on a uniformity and elasticity that now are wholly lacking, and our people are rid of the pernicious doctrine that money which is cheap and plenty is a blessing and a source of wealth instead of a curse and a cause of financial panic and altimate poverty, we can not but expect, at stated periods, a recurrence of conditions such as have and do still threaten us.

But it is said that in bringing about a different and other set of financial laws the banking interests must hold aloof. It is a striking illustration of the extent to which unreasoning passion and prejudice have crept into our politics, that in the present emergency which confroms the country bankers are compelled to hesitate as to the advability from the strudpoint of prudence, of actively urging the repeal of a measure, which stand concessedly as the source in the largest degree of past disasters and a dire menace to fature prosperity. Surely the banking interests of the repeal of a measure, which stand concessedly as the source in the largest degree of past disasters and a dire menace to fature prosperity. Surely the banking interests of the Republic. It may be that bankers are selfish, but not more so, I venture, than men in other walks of life. Surely not more so than the silver interests which to-day investigation of the walk of the wheels of legislation at Washington, but under the most loudly against them, as they would have been had they kept in mind in times of great prosperity the necessity of so banking as to be prepared for times of financial stringency. Competition for business is carried to the danger point by many, and the desire to secure a large business has led to the taking of risks not consistent with prudent methods. Not less a source of weakness has been the fact that to too large an extent has been carried the paper by those engaged in purely speculative enterprises, the value of which is at the best largely fictitious and in times of great depression is worthless, and, when to this is coupled the further fact that there is too little tendency on the part of the banks to distribute their loans and too great desire to place them with large corporations, the reason is not wanting for many suspensions and not a few failures. It is a source of constant complaint on the part of the national banks that it is unreasonable to hamper them by limiting their loans to 10 per cent of the amount of their capital stock, but the events of the past months have demonstrated the wisdom of that provision, and makes more strong the belief that a more strict adherence to it would make the banks stronger instead of weaker when threatened by financial panic. No section of law is so frequently violated and in none is there so great safety for careful banking.

Churchmen-The Procession and Exercises-Letter of Congratulation From the Pope.

BALTIMORE, October 18 .- Bright sun-

In conclusion, Mr. President, let me say that the greatest sateguard to the banking interests must always rest in the wisdom, the high character, the absolute integrity of those who manage and conduct these institutions, whether they be national, State or private. The officers of the law must look to them for constant aid, and if mindful of the law and regardful of their duty toward those who have placed faith in their probity, there need be little fear of dangerous banking or dishonest dealings. shinv weather greeted the opening of the festivities of the celebration in honor of the jubilee of Cardinal Gibbons. There is nothing in the nature of things to prevent the people of this country from devising, carrying into operation and enjoying to the utmost the most stable, the soundest and the most automatically adjustible currency and banking system in the world, a system by means of which we can gain and maintain our financial independence. Such a work can not be successfully undertaken by politicians who retain power by beguiling the people into the belief that their party has always been sound on questions of inance, no matter what the party platforms may say, or what the financial measures may have been enacted by party votes. Work of this character is particularly fitted for the American Bankers' Association. A special committee appointed by this association for such a purpose will undoubtedly receive the recognition and active co-operation of all industrial, commercial and financial organizations in the several States, on the request of the association asking the election by them of one or more persons to represent the industrial, commercial and financial interests of the State as members of a national monetary commission and to name others to be conferred State as members of a national monetary com-mission and to name others to be conferred with as its advisors." Highbinders and Criminals. SAN FRANCISCO, October 18 .- The Chiese Six Companies now appear to be eager to take advantage of the Geary act before the McCreary bill becomes a law. They are anxious to get rid of the highbinders and the worst criminal element among the Chinese in San Francisco. To this end they are aiding the police to arrest, convict and deport highbinders. Yesterday sixty-two Chinese were arrested by the police as vagrants. The Six Compa-nies and police detectives inspected the whole crowd at the city prison. BRAZIL, October 18.—News reached here to-day of a most serious fire which occurred at Saline City, about six mlles south of here, this morning about 2 o'clock. Flames broke out in the residence of Newell Banmain, the wealthy merchant of that place. The flames originated from a defective flue, and the dwelling burned flercely, The whole upper portion of the building was in a mass of flames before the members of the family, who came near being suffocated by smoke, awoke and escaped. Before help could arrive the flames had spread to the large store building of Mr. Baumunk, adjoining his residence. Both buildings and coutents were totally consumed, very little of any value being saved. The crowd of citizens were wholly unmindful of danger until suddenly there was a terrific explosion and suddenly there was a terrific explosion and an immense body of burning timbers were hurled into the air. For a time the whole town was threatened with destruction. Several persons were injured, among them a man named Bidwell who is supposed to be fatally injured. He was in the building when the explosion caused by several cans of blasting powder succumbing to the flames occurred and was horribly burned and bruised. At Chicago.

CHICAGO, October 18 .-- E. R. Wallace, assistant ticket agent of the Bond-street (Philadelphia) station of the Pennsylvania lines, drowned himself in a bath-tub at the Pennsylvania Hotel, Monroe avenue and Fifty-sixth street, this morning. About three months ago Wallace arranged for quarters at the hotel for himself and bride. Yesterday he appeared at the hotel without the bride, and has since been acting queerly.

THE BROWN MURDER TRIAL.

A Jury Has Been Found-The Case Will Now Proceed.

[Special to The Indianapolis News.] LEBANON, October 18 .- The first special venire of forty names was exhausted yes-terday evening at adjournment time. Judge Stephenson thereupon ordered the jury commissioners to convene forthwith and draw from the box twenty more names to be used as jurors. The venire was issued at 5 o'clock, and the sheriff and his deputies spent nearly all night summoning the drawn jurors to report this morning at 8:30 o'clock. Much to the surprise of all connected with the case, a jury was secured and accepted by both the prosecution and defense, and sworn to try the case by 10:15 this morning. The names of the jurors with whom rests the great responsibility of deciding the merits of this important case deciding the merits of this important case are as follow: Henry Cobb, James M. Jones, James M. Benefield, James M. Protit, William A. Jones, Samuel W. Wiley, Ben T. Hurr, James M. Nicely, David Custer, William H. Butner, Thomas B. Shaw and James M. Dye, all farmers and thoroughly reliable men. The indictment was read to the jury and the opening statement made on behalf of the State by Thomas J. Cofer, of Danville. In his statement he said the State would be able to prove that Mr. Brown had premeditated the murder and that Mr. Wesner made no resistance until after he was shot.

The State began to introduce witnesses this afternoon. Attorney Duncan announced that the statement of the defense nounced that the statement of the defense would be reserved until the State's evidence was all in. Judge Stephenson made an order at adjourning time—12 o'clock—that the jury would not be permitted to separate until the case is finally disposed of.

The family of Mr. Brown accompanied him to the court-room this morning. Mrs. Wesner and her daughter occupied places as on yesterday. The court-room has been crowded all day. The trial is attracting people from all parts of the State. Both the State and the defense have secured special shorthand reporters to take the evidence in detail for their use in argument.

$50,000 LOST IN TRANSIT. The American Express Company the

St. Louis, October 18 .- The American Express Company has lost $50,000 intrusted by a New York bank for transmission to

New Orleans via St. Louis. The money was placed in a strong lox in New York with Special Guard Koresudorfer in charge. Just where it flew the track not even the detectives at work upon the case seem able to learn. After a searching interview here with Koresudorfer and messenger Crowley, whose run was the last one upon which the package was traced, the detectives left for New Orleans, having apparently reached the opinion that the loss took place between this city and the Crescent.

Arrest of Grain Thieves.

[Special to The Indianapolis News.] Brazil, October 18.—For several days past Chief of Police Louderback has been receiving telegrams from Indianapolis and him to keep watch for and arrest John and Jack Huey, notorious grain thieves and all around crooks. For several days past grain thefts have been reported in grain theffs have been reported in this county. This morning officers from this city and Knightsville arrested the Hueys at Donaldsonville, just east of here. They had in their wagon at the time of their arrest about twenty bushels of wheat. They confessed that they stole last night from T. Jenkins, a farmer near Center Point. Both men were locked up.

No report has as yet been received from Lake Erie that in any way relates to the missing boat and both the owners and families of the crew are greatly worried about her.

CHARLES FRANCIS GOUNOD.

DEATH OF THE NOTED FRENCH COMPOSER THIS MORNING.

The End of a Long-Continued Illness -A Sketch of His Career-The Operas and Oratorios Which He Wrote-Other Deaths.

PARIS, October 18. - Charles Francis Gounod, the composer, died this morning after a lingering illness.

after a lingering illness.

Gounod was born in Paris, June 17,1818. His father was a painter of ability, and his mother a planist of superior capability. She died while her son was still young, but not before he had adopted the pursuit of excellence in music as his chief work. After enjoying auperior preparatory instruction in his art, at eighteen years of age Gounod became a pupil in the Conservatoire, Paris. When he was twenty-one he carried off the Grand Prix do Rome, awarded by the French Institute, for a cantata, "Fernand." Before leaving the Conservatoire he composed a solemn mass, which was sung in Paris by the choir of the church of St. Rustache. After compacting his course in Paris he proceeded to Rome, where he resided in the Medici Palace, and made a study of the cld masters, of Palestrina more particularly. His second solemn mass was produced in Paris in 1841, when he was again a resident of the French capital, after which he was appointed an honorary chapelmaster to the Church of Forcign Missions. He held this office six years, during which he studied his art with assiduous diligence. While occupying this position he married a daughter of M. Zimmerman, a professor of the piano at the Conservatoire. This step had the effect of putting an end to what seemed during one period of his life the possibility that he would enter holy orders. He loved theology, and at one time was an out-pupil of the Seminaire, thus gaining the considerable learning which places him among the few erudite composers of eminence.

Gounod's first opera, "Sapho," was produced in 1851, a short time subsequent to an enthusiastic recognition of his genus for music, that had appeared in the Athenseum of London, the first influential journal to appreciate his great ability. The opera was not a remarkable success. In 1852 the corporation of Paris appointed Gounod director of the Orpheon, a choral society which served as a training school for the Conservatoire. In the eight years during which he held this position he produced choruses for Ponsord's tragedy of Ulysse, the opera of Le Redecin Maigre Lui, and, in 1853, Faust, his first triumph. This was produced in Paris, March 19, 1859. The work was enthusiastically lauded by the public, and such eminent composers as Moscheles, Auber and Roasini hastened to honor its now distinguished author. "Faust" was produced in London in June, 1863. In England, Germany, Italy, Russia, in this country and in all other countries, it is regarded as a masterpiece. Within eight years from the production of "Faust" Gounod composed "Philemon, et Baucis, "La Colombe," "La Reine de Saba," "Mireille" and "Romeo et Juliette." A year before, in 1865, Gounod had produced an ora-

BOARD OF PUBLIC SAFETY.

NICHOLAS R. RUCKLE, JOHN B. CONNER AND JOHN F. WHITE.

The Appointments To Be Formally anounced To-Morrow-Something About the Three Men Who Compose the Board.

It has been practically decided that the new Board of Public Safety will be com-posed of Nicholas R. Ruckle, Republican; John B. Conner, Republican, and John F. White, Democrat. The board will not be formally appointed until to-morrow, All of these men have been before the community in public capacities before, and are nerally known.

Mr. Ruckle has been identified with many secret orders, especially the Uniformed Rank, in the State militia and in the nublishing business. He is now vice-president of the Baker-Randolph Company and presi-dent of the Masons' Union Life Associa-

Mr. Conner was once State statistician, is a member of the school board and is president of the Indiana Farmer Company. John F. White is an ex-councilman. He is a Democrat of independent tendencies, and went into the Council as a representative of labor interest. He was among the men-at-large nominated by the Democratic city convention, who resigned on account of irregular balloting. He delined to allow the use of his name by the second convention to nominate councilm at-large, but his name was presented and received a few votes. He is employed by W. B. Burford, printer.

Nicholas R. Ruckle.

Nicholas Randall Ruckle was born in Baltimore, Md., May 8, 1838. When ten his parents, and came to this city in 1852. He learned the printer's trade on the Jour-nal under John D. Defrees. In 1861 he enlisted in the army and went to the front as captain of Company E, in the Eleventh Indiana, Col. Lew Wallace's regiment. He was promoted to the colonelcy of the One hundred-and-forty-eighth in 1863. After he war he returned to the Journal as ashe war he returned to the Journal as as-listant foreian, and was afterward con-sected with the Mirror. In 1870 he was lected sheriff on the Republican ticket, and was re-elected in 1872. When his term if office expired he returned to the print-ing jusiness. He was president of the Metropolitan Police Board in 1887 and 1888, and resigned in 1889 to become adjutant-reneral of the State.

John B. Conner.

John B. Conner is sixty-two years of age. He was born in North Vernon, Jennings nounty. He was for a time proprietor of the paper at Kentland, Newton county. He Dame here nineteen years ago and pur-chased a half interest in the Indiana Farmer from J. G. Kingsbury. He has since been in that business, and has made a success of it. He is now in Chicago, Just build leaving for that city last week, Mr. Conner He is now in Chicago, Just before was informed by Mr. Denny that he would be appointed on one of the boards. He expressed preference for the Board of Public Safety. Mr. Conner was a member of the Legislature from this county twelve years ago, and is now serving his ninth year as a member of the school board, of which he was for two years president. He was appointed State Statistician by Governor Porter in 1884 and served four years. He has a wife and five children, and lives at 300 Park avenue.

John F. White was born at Charlotte, Mich., forty years ago. Three years later his family moved to Wayne county, Indiana, where he lived on a farm between trade, and in 1874 published the Hagerstown Friendly Visitor. The part was he trade, and in 1874 published the Hagerstown Friendly Visitor. The next year he moved and published the Cambridge City Review for a year. He came to Indianapolis fourteen years ago, and has worked here ever since at his trade. He was editor of the Labor Signal for several mouths a few years after his arrival in the city. Four years ago he was president of the Typographical Union. For seven or eight years he was delegate to the Central Labor Union. He was delegate to the State Federation of Trades for two years from the Typographical Union, and for one year from the Central Labor Union. He was representative of the Ninth ward in the City Council for two years, up to the time City Council for two years, up to the time of the last election.

PUBLIC OPINION. What Is Thought of the Proposed Board

The following are expressions concerning the proposed members of the Board of Public Safety: J. B. Suitt-The board is made of good Victor Hendricks-The appointments are w. S. Fish-All good men and they will do their duty.

W. H. Bennett—The appointments are good. With this board the laws will be enforced.

Albert Beck-It is a good all-Republican board. Mr. White can not be considered a J.T. Layman-The appointments are first-class. This board will do its duty and have the confidence of the people. L. W. Drew-Eminently satisfactory to me. A better man than Colonel Ruckle for the head of the board could not possibly be found.

Wm. Scott—I know Ruckie and Conner. Mr. White's reputation as a councilman was good. I don't think Mayor Denuy could have done better.

S. M. Shepard—Ruckle will be a good man at the head of the board. I have great admiration for his executive ability; besides that, he is a fine disciplinarian. It is a good

George G. Tanner—Is it Councilman White who worked to defeat Coy? Yes? Then it's a good board. Ruckle, as chair-man, will be the right man in the right

Sterling R. Holt—They are all good men, and the appointment of Mr. White I consider an excellent selection. I believe that to the majority of Democrats he will be very acceptable. very acceptable. very acceptable.

Berg Applegate—Two of the members I only know by reputation. Ruckle is an old Eleventh Indiana man, and when you get one of those fellows he is all right. He is a good man wherever you put him.

Ruckle being specially good. His tact and discipline will be felt in the management of the police force. The new board will put some needed discipline into it. Mr. Conner is a methodical man of business. I do not not know Mr. White personally.

Ex-Police Index Busking Mayor, Dancy Ex-Police Judge Buskirk-Mayor Denny is not keeping his piedge when he appoints Mr. White as a member of the Board of Public Safety to represent the Democrats. Every one who knows anything about it knows that Mr. White worked against the entire Democratic ticket in the recent cam-paign. He was defeated for the nomination paign. He was detected for the nomination for councilman-at-large, and he turned against Sim Coy and the entire Democratic ticket. It was all right for him to oppose Sim Coy if he wanted to, but he had no right to go back on the ticket. He is not the kind of a Democrat the party wants to represent it on that board.

represent it on that board.
When the announcement was made of the appointment it created some surprise, for, with the exception of Mr. Ruckle, none of the board was "suspected."

THE CITY ATTORNEYSHIP.

Strong Fight Against Horace Smith-The Politicians For Him. When a committee called on Mayor Denay and urged the appointment of Mr. Wiltsie as city attorney, the Mayor said:

"Gentlemen, this is one appointment in which I shall have absolute say. It is one that shall not be made as a reward for party service, nor for what may have been done for me in the campaign. In saying this, for me in the campaign. In saying this, understand I have no reflections to make on any one, nor have I in my mind any candidate. I realize that a man has a right to seek office, and I believe, too, in standing by one's friends. But the office of city attorney is one of great importance, and no one knows one of great importance, and no one knows its importance better than I do; neither does any one appreciate the importance of the city attorney in relation to myself in the conduct of city affairs. There are affairs of great importance to come up during the next two years and I must have a city attorney whose opinions I know to be the law! I must have a city attorney who can go into any court, no matter if it be the Supreme Court of the United States, and let me feel that the city's interests are in competent. that the city's interests are in competent hands. I only say this that you may know my feeling in the matter and I know that, having the interest of the city at heart, you will assist me in making a selection. I can make no promises.

make no promises."

The fight for Horace E. Smith for city at-The fight for Horace E. Smith for city attorney is conducted mostly by the politicians who cite his ability, his honesty, his party service and the fact that in the line of political promotions he stands first. It is current report around the City Hall that Harry B. Smith, chairman of the Republican city committee, called on the Mayor and told him that he had only one request to make, and that was the appointment of Horace E. Smith (his brother) as city attorney.

ment of Horace E. Smith (his brother) as city attorney.

The Mayor hoped yesterday to announce his appointments to-day, but said this morning that matters unexpected had come up, and it would be later in the day before he could do so, if he was able to make the announcement at all. Those who have applied for the city attorneyship are Chas. Wiltsie, L. C. Walker, John E. Scott, John F. Carson and Newton M. Taylor.

The Board of Public Works. The indications to-day seem to be that James A. Wildman, postmaster of Indiana-polis during the administrations of Presidents Garfield and Arthur, will probably be appointed on the Board of Public Works. He was one of the committee that drew up the present city charter.

AGAINST CIVIL SERVICE.

The Old Crowd Objecting To It-Affaire of the Police and Fire Forces, The old crowd that made Mayor Denny so much trouble when he was mayor before promises to do the same thing if he heeds promises to do the same thing if he heeds them now. The announcement that it was the intention to place the police and fire forces on a civil service basis was not received with joy by the old crowd, some of whom can hardly read or write. They have had friends examining the charter, and think that they have found a service in the office of the Cambridge City Tribane, then owned by Henry Meredith and W. P. Harding. He worked at his any attempt at civil service rules, and requires the forces to be made up of an equal number of Democrats and Republicans. What view the Mayor and the board he may appoint will take of this question is not known.

The struggle for official plums in both The struggle for official plums in both departments is going on in a lively way, and a lot of fellows are announcing whose "buttons" they propose to, get. According to their remarks, there is no use in having a Board of Public Safety, or even a mayor for that matter—they have matters all arranged themselves. "Bill" Long is particularly active, and Charles Foster has told a number of patrolmen—so they say—that he proposes to get a few heads himself because he has been "insulted" by certain policemen in the past.

The result of this talk is that the members of both departments are uneasy and some are neglecting their duty. They do not know how to act for fear they will tread on the toes of some one claiming to have a "pull" who will succeed in having them discharged. Mayor Denny has publicly stated that police and firemen need have no fear from this class of politicians, for they have no influence with him or any board he may appoint A great many statements have been made, but according to Mayor Denny the slate-makers are not the ones who do the appointing.
POLICE CANDIDATES.

The candidates for superintendent of po lice are Capt. Charles F. Dawson, Timothy Splan, chief of detectives; A. R. Lewis, better known as "Jack" Lewis, chief of the Union railway detective force; Eugene Saulcy, revenue inspector. For captains, martin Hyland, George Barlow, at present sergeants; Harry Slate, patrolman, and one or two others among the Republicans, The Democratic candidates are Sergeant Fred Kurtz, Emanuel Bruce, John Boylan and Frank Giblin, patrolmen. The friends of Super-intendent Colbert have asked that he be retained as the Democratic captain, but he has made no effort in the direction himself. If he can not be the Democratic captain his friends are urging him for chief of detectives provided Splan does not remain in that position. Milton P. Fort, formerly of the Big Four secret service, is also an applicant for chief of detectives. Al Travis, Al Moore and W. O. McKinney want to be bailiffs of the Police Court. Harry Wheatley wants his old place as a sergeant, and so does Harry Chifford. Ed sergeant, and so does narry Chnord. Ed Buscher, who was deposed about two years ago, has not said whether he wants to go back or not, but his friends say he would not object to a sergeantey. "Rod" Shea is an applicant for a place. "Brad" Connett thinks his services on election day and his sufferings election night entitle him to a police job. Lewis Weirlck wants a de-tective, notifien for which he says he is tective's position, for which he says he is fitted. In the fire department the demand is just as great, and a lot of politicans have picked out nice places for themselves.

THE SCRAMBLE SUBSIDING.

The Office-Seekers Are Neither So Numerous Nor So Persistent. The announcement by Mayor Denny that he would see no applicants for office after 6 o'clock last evening had its effect, and there were few waiting for him to-day. Charles Egger, who is a candidate for East Market master, grasped his hand. "You will have to excuse me this morning," said the Mayor.

"I don't want to take up your time.
only dropped in to extend congratulations," said Egger.
"Oh, yes. Thank you; much obliged." "Yes, sir; that's all. Of course you have been told the place I am a candidate for."
"Certainly, certainly. Will see you some other time," and the Mayor disappeared into his private office before Bradley, Connett, who had started out of a corner, where he was perusing the city charter, could extend his congratulations, Several colored men came in to see the Mayor about ap-pointments as park policemen. Another pointments as park policemen. Another man rushed up to Benno Mitchell and said:

I must see the Mayor at once! "I vas sorry, but he vas busy alretty, an' couldn't do so right avay," announced the evaluate to so right away." announced the guard at the door.

"Well, I'll tell you how it is. I did a good deal of work for Denny. My whole family did it, too, and I think I should be rewarded."

"Vell, what you dinks yould suit you?"

"Oh I wouldn't object to hears, building."

"Oh, I wouldn't object to being building

"Vell, I spoke to der Mayor aboudt you."
"Vell, I spoke to der Mayor aboudt you."
Another visitor said he just wanted to get in long enough to shake hands with the Mayor, and would hardly believe it when Mitchell said that the Mayor's hand had been shaken off. been shaken off. Engineer Mansfield has his resignation ready and will hand it in as soon as he finds out the new Board of Public Works. Neil McGroarty wants, the position of street commissioner.

MR. HOLLOWAY'S WORK.

He Has No Sinecure The Democrats Quarreling Among Themselves.
W. R. Holloway, who is acting temporarily as Mayor Denny's private secretary, is arily as Mayor Denny's private secretary, is one of the busiest men in town. When his chief is out, the scekers after office pile in on Mr. Holloway and he has to listen to all kinds of stories, and when he says he can not appoint to an office he gets harsh words. Then he has to read and properly file for the use of the different boards the great lot of applications, letters of recommendation and petitions, and between times wear his lungs this by yelling through the telephone that is hung to the wall just above his head. "Oh, I am used to this sort of thing," said Mr. Holloway, and he smiled when he said it as if he really enjoyed it. "It would be all right if they didn't come in here and ask so many questions that can be answered a month from now just as well."

"Are many Democrats are sending in written."

Are many Democrats applying for places?"

"More Democrats are sending in written applications than Republicans. There are fewer places for them, and the consequence is that they are fighting among themselves."

"Are there any protests against applicants?"

"Yes, a number; but they are all sent under personal cover to the Mayor, and I can give no information concerning them. A good many persons come in here and say that they read their names in the papers, and they desire to say they are not applicants. It will not be long till things settle down all right."

SECRET SOCIETY MEETINGS

THE ROYAL ARCH MASONS AND THE RED MEN.

Deaths Cause Two Empty Chairs in the Masonic Lodge-Reports Heard -Election of Officers By the Red Men-A Prosperous Order.

The forty-eighth annual convocation of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons began in Masonic Temple this afternoon. There were representative Masons present from every part of the State. The circumstances under which the members assembled were unusually sad. Since the last meeting both Grand High Priest Edward S. Ross, and Deputy Grand High Priest Lagrange Severance, have died. The session was presided over by Orlando W. Brownback, grand king and acting grand high priest. The acting high priest in his annual address said that for the first time in nearly half a century the chair of the grand high priest was vacant. The address was largely devoted to the two dead officers of the Grand Chapter. In concluding his address Mr. Brownback said: It is with no ordinary degree of satisfaction that I am permitted to say that peace, harmony, prosperity and unity prevail, not only with us, but throughout the entire Masonic world. There is not a single ripple of discord, nor a discordant speck to mar the sky, and not a wave of discontent to disturb the placid waters of Canithus Masonry. There is not not a wave of discontent to disturb the placid waters of Capitular Masonry. There is nothing to indicate the lack of that perfect harmony, peace and good will which has so long prevailed in this jurisdiction. And now, en this golden October day, with glad sunshine without and prosperity within, I kindly invite your attention to the business of this convocation. Martin H. Rice, the grand treasurer, in his report showed that the receipts of the chapter for the last year were $7,965, and the disbursements were $2,484, retary, which was more in detail, made the same showing as that of the grand treasurer.

The chapter elected officers this afternoon. The new officers will be installed tomorrow morning. Royal and Select Masters' Officers. The Royal and Select Masters of Indian Masonry have elected the following officers:

Masonry have elected the following officers: Illustrious Grand Master—Simeon S. Johnson, of Jeffersonville.

The council completed its work this forenoon and adjourned. Red Men's Great Sun Council.

The Great Sun Council of Improved Order of Red Men continued its deliberations this morning. There were present about 500 members. The morning was occupied in a debate on some proposed amendments to the by-laws. A few minor changes were made. The election of officers for the coming sun did not occur until late this afternoon. The officers are all decided upon except the great junior sagamore. There are a number of applicants for this place. It was expected that the vote on this position would be much divided. William Buehrig appears to be the strongest candidate. The rest of the offi-the strongest can amount of the cers are:

Great Sachem—W. B. King, Lafayette.
Great Senior Sagamore—Thomas J. Gray, Noblesville.
Great Chief of Records—Thomas G. Harrison, Indianapolis.

Indianapolis. Great Keeper of Wampum—John A. McGaw. Indianapolis. Great Representatives to the Great Council of the United States—John A. Zuck, Madison; Alfred Ellison, Anderson; M. G. Mock, Muncie; John A. McGaw, Andianapolis.

The session will probably close this even-ing. Members say that the meeting has been in every way a success, and that indications point to the continued prosperity of

THE MONUMENT FUND.

The Commission Makes Apportion ments For Various Purposes.

The Soldiers' Monument Commission yesterday passed the following resolution:

Whereas, It is estimated that, after paying all existing contracts, this board will have about $13,000 of the structural funds left to apply to future contracts; and whereas, it is settled by repeated decisions of the Supreme Court that all incidental expenses pertaining to the construction of the monument are to be paid out of the general fund in the State treasury, and not out of the structural funds; and, whereas, experience shows that about 20 per cent. of the expenditures required are for designs, models, transportation, scaffolding and other incidental expenses chargeable to the general fund; and, whereas, a knowledge of those facts makes it practical, as it certainly is desirable, that this board should now determine what contracts it will hereafter make and the proximate amount of the construction fund it will devote to each;

Therefore, the board now decides that said structural fund shall be substantially divided and applied as follows:

For the group of War, $40,000 out of the structural fund, and a sum not exceeding $6,000, out of the general fund, on such further sum out of the general fund as may be necessary to pay transportation and any other necessary incidental expenses properly chargeable to said general fund.

For the group of Peace, $40,000 out of the structural fund, and an amount out of the general fund the same as provided above for the group of War.

For the army astragal, $18,000 out of the structural fund, and $2,000 out of the general fund.

For the army astragal, $18,000 out of the structural fund, and $2,000 out of the structural fund.

For the cessary incidental expenses.

For the constructions on monument tablets, $1,000 out of the structural fund.

For elevator and pump, and machinery connected therewith, $9,500 out of the structural fund.

For inscriptions on monument tablets, $1,000 out of the structural fund. The Soldiers' Monument Commission yes nected therewith, $9,500 out of the structural fund.

For inscriptions on monument tablets, $1,000 out of the structural fund.

Leaving $6,500 of the structural fund for contingencies and miscellaneous purposes.

The naval astragal is not included in the list, as it was contracted for some time ago. This schedule was arranged for the guidance of the commission and to make public record of the amount of money there is available. It separates the structural from the incidental fund. At its session this morning the commission passed upon a number of bills for improvements about the monument.

THE ROCK THAT KILLED BARKER. Reed's Friends Say It Was Thrown By Another Man.

Mrs. Boring, the aunt at whose house William Reed, charged with killing policeman Barker at the Maennerchor Hall, was taken by the police Monday night, denies that her nephew is a bad boy who has been for some time under surveillance by the police. She says that she and all his relationship to the police of the police. "Yes, a number; but they are all sent under personal cover to the Mayor, and can give no information concerning them. A good many persons come in here and say that they read their names in the paper, and they desire to say they are not applicants. It will not be long till things settle down all right."

Gas Explosion in a Furnace.

James H. Haught, the engineer at Burford's printing-house, was regulating the gas mixers of the inreace late yesterday afternoon. When he put a licht into the furnace before turning on the gas again, he found that more gas than he shought had escaped during his work. There was a put of light and a tunnderine explosion which shook the building and broke several large windows upstairs. The engineer's clothes caught fire and he was badly burned about the arms and face. No one clse was hurf. The damage was about $100.

CROWDED STATE PRISONS. The Population Growing Since County Courts Convened.

Reports from the State prisons to the Governor say that the convict population is increasing greatly since the fall terms of court began in the different counties. The criminals have been accumulating in the jails during the summer, and the courts are now disposing of them rapidly. The num bers at the penitentiaries is growing so that the institutions are crowded. some relief to the cell-houses, the Governor will give worthy-pardon applications early attention. The demand of other business has taken his attention from the convicts, and, while the pressure for liberty has been at its standard, few prisoners have been released.

WILLIAM MANSUR ILL.

Suffering From Heart Trouble Which Causes Much Alarm.

William Mansur is lying ill at his home at Twenty-fourth and Illinois streets, of a heart trouble, which it is feared may prove fatal. South Bend Proud of Its Exhibits.

Elmer Crocket, editor of the South Bend Tribune, and postmaster of South Bend, is South Bend deserves a good deal credit for the exhibit it has made at the World's Fair," said Mr. Crocket. "The exhibit is certainly the finest and most complete made by any city of the size in the world. The city has seven and distinct exhibits in Machinery Hall, and it has some of the largest and most attractive exhibits in the Transportation Building. Indiana ought to be proud of South Bend, for we have certainly saved the reputation of the State at the Fair. If every city in the State had taken as much pride in making exhib-its at the Fair as South Bend did, Indiana would have stood at the head of the list.'

Says Her Child Was Stolen

Mrs. M. McPherson, of 94 North Missis sippi street, complained this morning that Mei McPherson, from whom she was divorced by Judge Walker two years ago, had stolen her six-year-old child from the Orphans' Home. She says that her husband is not a fit person to have the custody of the child and wants him returned to the home.

Hog Killing Begun.

The Moore Packing Company began killng hogs again to-day. The company's intention of resuming became known yesterday, and five hundred men were at the office this morning seeking employment. The company needed only one-tenth that number. For the opening the company will kill about 500 hogs a day.

The Board of Public Works.

To the Editor of The Indianapolis News:

While the entire community is interested in the appointment of the boards by the mayor, can you not suggest that it would be well to appoint at least one man on the Board of Public Works who would be willing to give his entire time to the work? There surely ought to be some such man available, with the necessary qualifications, even if there is none such among the present candidates. The citizens then 'could be assured of a patient hearing, which is impossible to obtain from gentlemen who can not devote much of their time from their own affairs to the public interests, no matter how willing. People who have matters to present to the board have a right to expect the time given them for a presentation of their business, and a discussion of it with them. The writer believes that such a man, in real earnest, could do more than anything else to make this board popular and efficient, and do away with much of the complaint we hear about it. Civex.

[A good deal of the "complaint we hear about" is unworthy of attention. "Civex" labors under a wrong impression, we think, as to the scope and duties of the Board of Public Works, also as to the way in which the former board discharged these duties. Nothing has suffered from lack of any one's attention. The board, in the past, has given all the attention necessary to the work. It is not contemplated that the Board of Public Works shall be a court to sit all day where everybody who has a complaint can go, and, as this communication delightfully says, "have a discussion about it with the board of Public Works shall be a court to sit all day where everybody who has a complaint can gives to hearing complaints is not all the time it devotes to its business. Indeed, it might be said that is so much time taken from its business. Better results all around can be arrived at, we believe, by the plan that has been adopted. If the board orders a street or an alley improved, and some man thinks it ought not to be impro

LOWER COURT SUSTAINED.

SUPREME COURT DECISION IN THE WEST-RASSMANN CASE.

The Final Construction of the John son Will-Testator Held To Have Meant Division by Families-Various Other Litigation.

The Supreme Court to-day, in the case of Mary J. West against Emil C. Rassmann, sustained the decision of the Marion Circuit Court. The case involved the will of William Johnson, who died some time ago and left an estate worth about $80,000. The construction of the will was in dispute among the relatives of Mr. Johnson and his wife. The plaintiffs claimed that the estate should be divided by families. The court held that it was the intention of the will to divide the money among the individual heirs.

assignment of errors. Damages Given.

In Superior Court, No. 1, the jury, in the case of Sallie D. Smith against the Western Paving and Supply Company, brought in a verdict for the plaintiff. This was a suit for damages. Mrs. Smith fell down a cistern in Massachusetts avenue from which the pavers had removed the lid. She asked for $10.000. The jury gave her a verdict for $6,930. Attorney Miller, for the defense, gave notice that he would file a motion for a new trial

John A. Reaume Assigns.

Acquitted and Re-Arrested. In the Criminal Court, this morning, Philip Carroll, charged with burglary, was acquitted by a jury. He was at once ar-rested again on a charge of grand larceny.

TENTATIVE TOWNS IN OKLAHOMA. Business Men Do Not Know Where They May Safely Locate.

[Topeka (Kas.) correspondence New York Times.] [Topeka (Kas.) correspondence New York Times.]
The town-site speculators of Oklahoma are keeping prospective business men in a state of uncertainty that materially adds to the revenues of those who secured the advantage at the time of the great rush. Owing to the uncertainty attending the permanency of towns, business men are compelled to own, or have hold upon, two or more town lots in order to be sure of locations. This means that the speculators sell two lots where they would otherwise sell but one.

The Cherokes Town Company, which con-

The Cherokes Town Company, which controls all the Indian allot ments on tone, has laid out eight towns, which it is seeking to have take the places of the towns laid out by the Government. In every instance the town sites laid out after selection by the agents of the Government are from two to four miles from the existing railway stations. At the railway stations extensive improvements have been made, which the companies are now asked to abandon. The Cherokee Town Company's town sites are close to the railway stations. There are postofices at the Government towns and none at the rival towns, The rival towns have railway facilities, while the Government towns have none, nor are they likely to have. The Postmaster-General has interfered so far as to recommend the stoppage of the mail trains at the towns where there are postofices, but this the railroad companies refuse to do, because they are so near existing stations which they have entered into contract to keep up.

CHANGING STATIONS.

CHANGING STATIONS. To change the station at Enid would cost the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company over $50,000, and even then there would be the constant menace of expensive litigation, because the switches would have to be situated both in a cut and on a bridge, to be situated both in a cut and on a bridge, rendering accidents extremely liable. At Perry the change could be made for possibly $35,000, which the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe authorities see no good reason for expending, especially as the removal would bring the station within two miles of would bring the station within two miles of another on the north and within three miles of the water tank on the south, where all trains would be compelled to make a second stop. These reasons also apply at the other towns. The railway companies have been accused of exercising arbitrary action in this manner, but as they save fully $200,000 each by remaining as they now are it is clearly in the interest of economy that they refuse to move, especially as they would have no increase of business. In two or three instances a few men organized town companies on the musual plan, by which all members paid in money plan, by which all members paid in money chough to cover all expenses. The plan adopted in each instance was a fair and equitable one, for a drawing of lots was to take place in which all were to share alike. For some unaccountable reason in no instance was a lot drawn in the part of any of the towns set aside for business purposes. Men who had their membership repeated many times by paying into the corporation certificate fees in hope of increasing their chances for drawing desirable lots, found themselves located fully a mile from the street on which they expected to do busistreet on which they expected to do business. They also found that he town officers had in every instance been selected without consulting the wishes of the other members, and that these officers had the disposition of the undrawn lots, and that in some manner there was no accountability for the funds received SWINDLED BY SHREWD MEN.

To an observer who has no interest on either side it looks as though many men had been swindled for the benefit of a few had been swindled for the benefit of a few shrewd men. In the meantime the popula-tion of all the towns seems to be steadily decreasing, "getting down to the normal condition," as the residents claim. Busi-ness is greatily overdone, and can be re-duced only by an expensive freezing-out process. In the town of Parry there are three daily papers and half a dozen week-lies. The town will eventually support two weeklies, or at most three. The result will weeklies, or at most three. The result will be a number of deteriorated newspaper plants, a number of unpaid paper bills, and several tramps made of men who took their chances of becoming leading politicians, for every newspaper man in politicians, for every newspaper man in the West is a politician, or at least thinks the west is a politician, or at reast thinks he is. There are many good people here; some of them will stick, even as the good people in western Kansas stuck, and starved. There is bound to be much suffering, owing to the lateness of the season in which the land was opened up. Attempts will be made to arouse the interest of East-cropes in home of unleading extensive that erners in hope of unloading property that was taken only for speculative purposes.

TO THE VICE-PRESIDENT. WE printed yesterday two very significant interviews which the Vice-President would well to study. Judge Thomas M. Cooley and Mr. Simon Sterne are men whose words are entitled to the most respectful consideration. They are, both of m, great lawyers, and are both familiar with the spirit of our institutions. Judge

Cooley, speaking of senatorial courtesy,

If the custom to that effect were to grow up and be tolerated by courtesy, as one that in so dignified a body would not be abused, it would be void, and the Senate in recognizing it to the extent of permitting the minority to decide what its action should be, or that no action should be had, when the minority as declared, would be taking a revolutionary If the custom to that effect were to grow u its constitutional duty plainly is to proce as if no such revolutionary rule or custom ex-isted. When a minority of the members show by their conduct, and even boastingly declare, that they propose to avail themselves thereof, or the express purpose of preventing the senate exercising its constitutional authority, hey are in so doing professedly making use of the rules of the body for disorderly purpose, and the Senats is no more bound to submit to these disorderly proceedings than it would be to that of persons not members who should in any way attempt to prevent regular legisla

Members of the majority should make the proper motions, looking to the definite and final action on the pending measure, and the presiding officer should recognize them, since only in that way can the inalignable right of ite to express its will be exerc

We believe that this is sound doctrine. Stewart has no more right to obstruct the orderly proceeding of the Senate than a door-keeper or spitton-cleaner would have. He is an intruder and a revolutionist. This is Judge Cooley's view. Beyond question it is the sound view. There is indeed no other view which is consistent with the existence of Democratic institutions. It seems to us that the responsi-He can force a vote whenever he pleases. Why not meet force with force? Mr. tinguished lawyers of New York city, is of the same opinion. He says:

Assuming that there is a clear majority in favor of the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman silver law. Mr. Stevenson can press a vote, with the consent of a majority, although there is no rule recognized of cloture although there is no rule recognized of clother or call for the previous question. The method is perfectly simple. The presiding officer de-clines to entertain dilatory motions, and on appeals from his decision the majority susappeals from his decision the majority sus-tains him. He then puts a vote on the main question, after disposing of the various amendments then before the house, without recognizing any further motions to amend, has the vote and majority recorded, certifies the bill to the President, which, with his signa-ture, becomes a law, although half the rules and customs of the Senate may have been violated in enacting it. violated in enacting it.

We do not see how there can be any escape from this conclusion. Mr. Stevenson is the presiding officer of the United States Senate. The business of a presiding officer is to see that the body over which he presides does not degenerate into a lawless mob, but that it moves along in an orderly, legal and constitutional way. Rules or no rules, the chairman of a legislative body is bound to guide it-not to control it, but to guide it This responsibility inheres in the office. Mr. Stevenson would not hesitate to interfere in behalf of an oppressed minority. He would insist that the minority had a right to be heard. And yet he seems unwilling to do anything to secure the right of the majority to control the Senate. We say that things have reached such a pass that the President must act. Confessedly the silver debate is over long ago. For ten weeks the "debate" has been going on. It is good for ten weeks The Senators who are pouring this flood of talk are playing with the Senate. They have thrown aside all pretense. Courtesy has been lost sight of. The dignity of the Senate has been trampled on. It is no longer a deliberative body. It is no longer a le 'slative body. The majority is powerless. As Judge Cooley says, a revolution has been effected. This being so, what right have the revolutionists that Mr. Stevensou is bound to respect? Not one that we can think of. Even as Senators they have had every right to which they are entitled. In ten weeks even Peffer and Stewart should be able to tell all they know many times over.

But the Senate and the country have rights which Mr. Stevenson can vindicate if he will He does not need any rules. Common decency, common sense, his official position, these things are sufficient warrant. He has the power. Will he use it? Let Senator Yoorhees move that the senate proceed at once to a vote upon the Voorhees bill and let Mr. Stevenson refuse to recognize any Senator until after the vote has been taken. We hold that this would be not merely a justifiable, but a raiseworthy act upon the part of the Vice-President Will he not come to the posed to be wholly above all mere partisan considerations. He is chosen because of his supposed fairness. The position is one of the greatest dignity, and the man who fills it has substantially a life tenure. Governments may come and go, but he holds his office. To all intents and purposes he is not a member of the House, He does not control it as our Speaker does; on the contrary, he is almost the counterpart of the President of our Senate. And yet in the long debate in the House of Commons on the adoption of the closure, the Speaker forced a vote by declining to recognize any of the filibusterers. Though they yelled "treason," the House applauded and the Nation approved. The act has ome historic. In the account of it, which was printed in yesterday's NEWS, it was said that "the Speaker explained that there was no known power which could terminate a debate or suppress obstruction in what he described as the first debating assembly in the world. 'I assumed that power, he went on to say, and the ringing cheers which drowned the remainder of the sentence voiced the sentiment of the nation, which was that however harshly his ruling bore on one section of the empire, it put a stop to a scandal which bid fair to east discredit upon parliamentary government generally."

That is our case exactly. Will not Vice-President Stevenson rise to the occasion? Will he not "put a stop to a scandal" which has already east discredit upon representative government? The eyes of the Nation are upon him.

THE MAYOR'S APPOINTMENTS. THE further appointments of city officials are soon to be announced. Possibly Mayor Denny has made up his mind as to the appointees. Nevertheless we think it not amiss to recall to him some things in this particular that we have said since his election. Among these is this:

Mr. Denny was not elected by a strict party ote, and could not have been so elected. Democrats in large numbers voted for him, not because they had forgotten his previous administration, but because they disapproved of the Sullivan policy, and because they believed in Mr. Denny's promises. Mr. Denny's election was not an indorsement of his last term, and he will make a most grievous mis-take if he shall so consider it. We do not think he does so consider it, and it is only fair to Mr. Denny to suspend judment until he has indicated more clearly his purposes by the character of the men he appoints to the ad-

At another time, discussing this same question, we spoke as follows:

The most important duty Mr. Denny has to meet first is the selection of his boards. He has doubtless given the subject much thought already. On the character of the men selected the people will form their expectation of the kind of administration that we are to have for the next two years. Too great care, therefore, posed of men who are recognized as genuinely representative of the best interests of the city. They should be truly representative of both political parties. It is to be expected, of course, that the Republicans will have the majority of the members of all the boards. Mere politicians, "workers" out of a job, are not the class of Republicans that should be drawn upon, but men whom the whole city will recognize as public-spirited citizens, who care more for the good govern-ment of the city than for mere party ad-

And in selecting Democrats Mr. Denny should not choose men that the Democratic party discouns or disapproves of. He should be careful not to get any Democratic Catter-son on his hands. He should take really repson on his nands. He should take really representative Democrats, men in whom the party has confidence, and whom it will be glad to see in public place. Mr. Denny, declares his purpose to make the administration non-partisan, in deference to the spirit of the charter. The city will look for the proof of this purpose in the character of the men chosen for the boards.

These remarks are still in order. It is "in the air" that Mr. Denny shall have a fair trial. The very atmosphere welcomes bility is largely with the Vice-President. him to an unhampered effort to do his best. The result of the moral purification of Tuesday's election makes it easier to Simen Sterne, one of the most dis- go straightforward in a broad, non-partisan execution of the law than to go in any other direction. Whatever shall be Mr. Denny's choice, we believe, as we have said, that the universal temper and disposition is that his administration shall have a fair trial, and that, too, in a community that wishes him well. It is therefore, we think, doubly important that he shall by his steps give evidence of his recognition of the meaning of Tuesday's verdict.

A FOOLISH POLICY.

THE simple truth is that we are not raising enough money to pay our way. Ex-Controller Woollen sees this. A year ago he recommended a 70-cent levy instead of the 60-cent one that was adopted. Events have proved that he was right. But he seemed to have little influence with the Council which fixed the rate for the current year, and it adopted the old 60-cent levy in order to make a good showing in the pending campaign. We have no hesitation in saying that this is a mischievons policy. It may mean a long series of temporary loans, and it means further that we are to pay nothing on our bonded indebtedness. To-day the city is unable to meet its obligations. We have already anticipated our revenues to the extent of $20,000. We have $140,000 of temporary loans to pay next month. On the 24th day of next January $109,500 worth of bonds fall due, and all the while our current city expenses are going on at the rate of $40,000 a month. We do not mean to exaggerate matters, but there is no use in trying to blind ourselves to the fact that the finances of the city are in a bad condition. We can work ourselves out, but there is need for the strictest economy. In any case, we hope the the present city government will not con-tinue the suicidal and demagogical policy of its predecessor. The people are not fools. They would much rather pay the legitimate expenses of an economically administered government than to pay interest to bankers.

IT is the Vice-President's move.

Indianapolis' new mayor assumes a very sprightly reform gait at the start.—[Washington Post,

May the pace down the home-stretch beat it.

POPULACE Senator Allen, the sixteen hour speech man, is much distressed because Mr. Palmer, of Illinois, charged him with wasting time. Why he should be angry we can not imagine. A ten-minute speech from Allen would be a waste of time. Yet he is very indignant at Senator Palmer's perfectly truthful suggestion, and says: "I am not here with a brass collar around my neck." Oh, no; his neck is all right. The brass is in his tongue. The collar that he wears is of

ATTORNEY-GENERAL GREEN SMITE says that if he were Vice-President, he would have a vote mighty quick. We believe he would. We should like to see him in the act of throttling Stewart. It is perhaps needless to remark that we believe Mr. Smith's analysis. rescue of an outraged people?

I think Vice-President Stevenson has a perfect right, and it is his duty, now that the country recognizes the abuse of the rules, to force a vote upon the silver bill. If I were in his place I would do it within an hour." The Journal eadlines this dispatch, "Usurper Smith." We wish Usurper Smith might have a whack at the situation.

Mr. Stevenson has a magnificent chance to emerge from the obscurity which usually nshrouds a Vice-President.

WE trust that Controller Trusler will stand out to the extent of his rights and powers against the claims for election expenses. It seems to be not too much to say that an election is taken as a means to gouge the people. No amount of money is too dear to expend for a pure and honest election, and under the Australian system we have a pule and honest election, we believe. But the amount of money justly to be expended for such thing, and unjustly, are two different things, and the difference is as wide as the world, The bill of particulars for the elections wears the appearance, we say, of a wholesale attempt to gouge the people. We trust that the controller will be able to defeat every item of wrong in the present attempt.

WE have heard much of Mr. Stevenson's ax. Has he not a club which he could use on Promoter Stewart's head?

THE late city administration was evidently a hand-to-mouth affair. Whatever Mayor Denny may or may not do, it is becoming clearer as the days go by that the change wrought last Tuesday was in the highest legree advisable. SENATOR STEWART thinks we would have

THE Philokurian Seciety at Butler University has decided that THE INDIANAPOLIS News is an independent paper. The young men have decided rightly. Independence in this connection is a word applied largely to political discriminations. The Philokurian Society, as we take it from the name, is the 'Love Christ" society-which is therefore the "love truth" society. Its members in this debate have found the truth on this subject, and we do not believe the discussion could have failed of its profitable lessons. Independence is a product of knowledge and ourage. The independent man is one who does not believe that one party in a political controversy is necessarily right simply because it was once on the right side of another question, or because his father thought it was right. The student learns that parties are fallible. He does not accept the dictum of the ward primary as of more weight than the word of scholars and the lessons of history. There are those whom think and those who allow others to think for them. THE NEWS prefers to belong to the former class not only in politics but in all things pertinent for consideration. The Irvington society has found this out, and its members evidently believe in that sort of

THERE is serious talk about continuing the World's Fair another year. The argument in etter public knowledge of the merits of the Fair would increase the attendance fourfold. But the difficulties in the way are very great. The protection to exhibits dur-ing a severe winter would be very expensive. There would be a thousand other difficulties about State and foreign exhibits to arrange, and the stockholders might demand to be paid the surplus after the present season closes rather than risk the matter another SENATORIAL courtesy may soon call for ten-foot ring and two-ounce gloves.

GRANT FAMILY REUNION. A Notable Gathering in New York Last Night-The Family's Plans.

NEW YORK, October 18,-Members of the immediate family of the late Gen. U. S. Grant celebrated a reunion, enjoyed a family dinner, and afterward received visits from a number of close friends in the Fifth avenue Hotel last evening in honor of Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, who will sail for England on the American Line steamer Paris to-day. Mrs. Grant sat at the head of a table surrounded by her own children and her older grandchildren, while the little ones were grouped about a table of their own. Besides Mrs. Grant there were present Colonel and Mrs. F. D. Grant their daughter, Miss Julia Grant, and their son, Ulysses S. Grant, third; Mr. and Mrs. Ulysses S. Grante Jr., and Miss Julia Grant. their daughter, Mrs. Sartoris and Algernon Sartoris, Vivian Sartoris and Rosemary Sar toris, her children. After dinner the family held an inform reception. Persons well known in political, military and social circles passed in and out of the parlor until nearly midnight. Among the visitors were Mr. and Mrs. McKee, son in-law and daughter of ex-President Harris son; Gen. Grant Wilson, General Comstock. Mr. Purrington, Col. Tom P. Ochiltree and Mr. Coddington. Colonel Grant looked well and seemed in good spirits. "Our dinner was merely a little family gathering," he said. "There were just thirteen of ing," he said. "There were just thirteen of us present, strange as it may seem, but we put the children at a small table, and so broke the spell of the ill-omened number. Mrs. Sartoris, my sister, sails for England to-day with her three children, and will go directly to London to her home. What my mother's plans are I can not say definitely. She may go West with Ulysses, who intends to visit our brother Jesse in California. I shall return to Cranston's Hotel, in Highland Falls, near West Point, N. Y., with my family in a few days."

Short In His Accounts SALISBURY, N. C., October 18 -- Mr. I. H. Foust, lately cashier of the First National Bank here, has been found to be $8,000 short in his accounts with foreign banks, The bank directors have accepted Mr. Foust's resignation. He has secured the bank against loss by a transfer to it of per-sonal property and real estate.

[Chicago Post.]

It is estimated that between $750,000 and $1,000,000 a day was spent in Chicago last week by World's Fair visitors. The banks are running over with money, and some of them are actually cramped for room to store it. It might have been thus all summer if the railways had come to their senses earlies.

Banks Running Over With Money

O my love, My Queen of May,
The light or youth is gone.
Thy balmy tresses gather gray,
Thy rosy lips are wan.
Will thy true eyes alter yet,
And their nuptial smile forget? O my love, will Time deceive, Will he wither true I can be

Than the silly nations know; More in Love, when blood is dead, Than the rose-wreath round his head my love, and if thou need Harbor when the north wind blows; f thy tender footprints bleed On the flints among the snow; Love will raise a sheltered cot

There is more in Love, believe

O my true love, we are wise; When snow whitens all our land, Underneath the cloudy skies We will travel hand in hand; Since we have not lar to go To our rest beyond the snow.

To one sent by a corps commander to ask at what point he wished it to camp that night, he replied: "Tell him to march them to the Virginia line." Mr. Riley's New Book of Poems Old and New Verses

Mr. Riley's new book, "Poems Here at Home," has been received with great and deserved applause. Those who have enjoyed the old favorites like "The Raggedy Man," "Good-by, Jim," and several others, and beautiful form; while the new poems will be hailed as a fresh manifestation of the poet's power, Mr. Riley's work always suggests the question of form, and yet we can not but think that the discussion of this question is wholly profitless. Form is nothing in itself. And dialect is worse than useless unless it clothes some substance of truth or sentiment. And when we find that the one best thing Mr. Riley has done is not in dialect—we mean the opening sonnet, "When She Comes Home"—it ought to be clear that the true poet is confined to no one vehicle of expression. Of course it will not do to belittle form. The point is that the most successful worker in dialect will also succeed-if he be a poet-in more dig nified fields. Lowell is a perfect illustra tion of this truth. And we think that the man who wrote "The Raggedy Man" and 'When She Comes Home' is another Illus tration of it.

We believe that Mr. Riley's distinguishing mark-and this is an attribute of genius-is his power to see and to express the beauty monplace world, full of commonplace men and women, the poet who writes verse with Somepin' with live-stock in it, and out-doors strikes pretty close to the human heart We do not know much about olive trees; but the sycamore we understand. It is sometimes suggested that Mr. Riley depends too much on the home-spun which his people wear. But surely this is a mistake. It is their character which draws us-not their clothes. Who cares how "Doc Sifers" is clad? This error is the same as the one about dialect. Good poetry is independent of spelling, and true men and women are not tailor-made.

We do not know whether the "Song of the Bullet" is new or not. It is new to us. It certainly has unusual merits. "But the whole book is good. There are two editions of it; one the regular Century Company edition, and the other, prepared spe cially for the "folks at home," is called the photogravure edition, and contains a handsomely etched portrait of the author, done in brown photogravure ink.

The college council is the latest political economy of the school at Moore's Hill. It consists of the faculty and a representative from each of the cults and a representative from each of the classes. The purposes of the council are to bring the student body and the teachers into still closer contact and to promote the interests of the college in every way. The sophomore class was the first to choose a councilman, selecting Frank Miller. Quincy Spence is the senior's representative.

The athletic association, through President Wood, serves just notice that only members of the association will be allowed to use the athletic grounds and apparatus.

KILLED HERSELF.

Mrs. Louise Francis Took Morphine -What Her Husband Says.

Mrs. Louise Francis, twenty-six years old, yesterday shut herself up in her room over a saloon at 346 Virginia avenue, and tried to kill herself by taking morphine. Her husband, George gave her a hypodermic injection and the husband seemed indifferent, and did not know whether she would recover or not. "We've been married nine months." he said, "and we've been fussing all the time. She had a hot temper, and I've got a temper myself. I took my carpenter's tools and pulled out for good Saturday night."

He went to Staley's drug store to see when his wife had bought the morphine. "She's not the wife you're used to seeing," he explained. "That one died last year." He went on to repeat his story. He said he had been out of work, as a carpenter, all summer, and could not pay for his room. He took away his things to leave for good, and his wife begged him to stay, but he said he would never go back to her. The druggist said he had sold a messenger for Mrs. Francis not more than three grains of morphine, which couldn't be fatal. Later in the day she made other purchases elsewhere. She lay until 7 o'clock last evening, when she died.

A Story About Grant. "There's a little story on General Grant that I happen to know and that has never been in print," said Taylor O'Bannon. When the war broke out recruits gathered at the fair grounds at Mattoon, Ill. I was a boy and peddled apples among the sol-diers. Grant was adjutant-general of Illinois, or mustering officer at that time, and one day he drove out to camp. I was at the gate when he started back. He was stopped by when he started back. He was stopped by the guard who refused to let him out without a pass. Grant told him who he was but the guard was not satisfied and refused to let him out. Grant sat in the buggy a minute or two, thinking. He then got out, fastened the lines to the dashboard and giving the animal a sharp cut with the whip, horse and buggy went by the guard like a flash. Grant then went to a low place in the fence and climbed over. The horse stopped half a square away and Grant climbed into the buggy and drove off without even looking back. SOCIETIES AT HARVARD.

THEY DIFFER FROM ORGANIZED WESTERN STUDENTS.

Antiquity of More Prominent Ones-The "Speaking Club"-The "Hasty Puddings'" Public Dramatic Performances-Club-House.

[Correspondence of The Indianapolis News.] CAMBRIDGE, October 14.-Many persons if asked to name the brightest spot in their past or present experience, would refer to college fraternity membership, as combining more elements of true enjoyment, of culture and profitable association than any other relation of their lives. Sup-plying the place of the family more nearly than anything else in college is able to do, and revealing to a young man what he is, and what he may become, it is not strange that the tenderest regard is felt by both undergraduates and alumni for the clubs which instructed, encouraged and inspired during a critical period of their careers. Indiana fraternity men are noted for their abiding loyalty to their old societies. Many are the edifying scenes which occur at the annual commencement seasons, when the graduates of a quarter or half century ago gather with the students of to-day in the Chapter Hall; and keen is the observer, on such occasions, who can discern from their such occasions, who can discern from their songs, words or actions, which are the younger, the boys who are sixty years young, or the boys who are twenty years

Even the graver students of former years Even the graver students of former years may see in Harvard's club life something highly suggestive of their own, or something capable of a strong contract, willingly made, with their former experiences. Fraternity lite is a matter of minor importance at Cambridge. Membership in a Greek letter society is not a coveted honor for which the great body of the students have and strive, the greatest social feature. hope and strive; the greatest social feature of the university is its club life. To be sure there are many Greek fraternities at Cambridge, but you seldom notice a shield, a diamond or a star, and never hear of the great triumphs which so often cause the hearts of Western Greeks to swell with pride when some high honor has been gained by a fraternity brother, or the society has achieved a victory over a rival.

SERENITY OF STUDENT LIFE. At this busy season of the year, when in so many institutions the students lose needed rest, and visibly "dwindle, peak and pine" from their unceasing efforts in that wearing occupation known as "spiking" or "rushing" new and available freshmen, all is quiet at Harvard, so far as outward appearances are concerned. With 3,000 students from which to choose, every fraternity in the college world might glean its chapter material from this body without seriously disturbing the even current of the university life. But there are four clubs at Cambridge whose names are as familiar to every student in the city as is the name of every student in the city as is the name of Harvard itself. Their reputation has been widely extended in the outside world because of their antiquity, the names of eminent men that have been associated with them and from their prominence in the social and intellectual life of the university. In the West we think our fraternity chapters heavy with age if they date back fifty years, but here are clubs which have enjoyed a continuous and prosperous exenjoyed a continuous and prosperous existence for over a hundred and fifty years, and bid fair to be immortal. Here is the "Institute of 1770," organized in that year "Institute of 1770," organized-"in that year by a few young men who had become impatient at what they designated the "cold indifference," on the part of the faculty, "to the practice of oratory." Its original name was the "Speaking Club," its primary object to make orators. It was probably called into being by the troublesome, yet inspiring, times which immediately preceded the great struggle for liberty. Its minutes show that the topics of discussion minutes show that the topics of discussion were of fathomless depth and of infinite variety, including such ponderous themes as "The Beauty of the Heavenly Bodies," "Odiousness of Envy" and the "Pernicious Habit of Drinking Tea."

Each of these is referred to in the minutes as being "eign compositionem." which as being "ejus compositionem," which, tary and necessary rule was adopted at an early stage of the club's existence that no member should speak in Latin without special leave from the president.

A CHANGE OF NAME. After absorbing several of its rivals, the "Speaking Club" remained for some time a secret organization of the senior class, whose members were bound by heart shaking oaths never to divulge the great secret of the society—namely, that it was a speaking club; or that it even existed. Finally it dawned upon their minds that perhaps the name of "The Speaking Club" might suggest its purpose; so, to quote the records of the club, "being actuated by a benevolent purpose to transmit this inviolable secret unimpaired as a blessing to posterity," the name was changed to "The Patriotic Association," and finally to the "Institute of 1770."

"Institute of 1770."

Among the many famous men who were formerly members of the institute, were Rufus King, James Treeman, Henry Ware and J. A. Adams.

Though originally a senior society, it subsequently become a junior, and is now a sophomore club. At the end of each year the outgoing sophomores electten freshmen, who in turn elect such others of their classwho in turn elect such others of their classmates as they may think desirable until a membership of about one hundred is reached. In 1891-92 there were 106 regular members from the sophomore class. Last year there were forty-six. At the beginning of the college year the juniors initiate the first ten sophomores, selected in the previous spring, who then initiate their classmates. These occasions are deeply interesting to the philosophical outsider, and still more so to the small boy of Cambridge.
The committe on initiation, thirty or forty strong, goes forth on its mission of love some dark night in the early part of the year. The moment the crowd leaves the chapter-house the institute song is started, and fifty lusty voices are raised in a lay without words, for this song—the peculiar property of the institute—though bright and attractive in its air, boasts of only one syllable—"la"—which is made to do valiant service before the night is over. Stimulated by the inspiring strains of this melody, and, service before the night is over. Stimulated by the inspiring strains of this melody, and, perhaps, by some previous potations, the committee proceeds to search for sophomore novitates. When once found, it matters not in what state they may be, they are not permitted to attire themselves for the occasion, but are marched through the chief streets of Cambridge at a double-quick, while the ever increasing crowd shouts over and over again the martial air of the institute song.

The medic of this organization is: "Hace Studia Adolescentiam Alunt"—"These Studies Aflord Nourishment for Youth." But "these studies" are now purely social. The old purpose of the institute is gone. No longer does it gain its nourishment and strength from the search after knowledge, but rather from the banqueting table and from the social commingling of its members. Another equally famous and almost equally ancient club is the "Hasty Pudding," called by Harvard men "The Pudding," called by Harvard men "The Pudding," Its foundation dates back to 1795, when it was instituted by the junior class. Its purpose was to foster friendship and patriotism. It was doubtless the outcome of the enthusiastic national sentiments left in the minds of all by the progress and outcome of the revolution. The members, in alphabetical order, were required by a provision of the constitution to provide a pot of hasty pudding for every meeting. From this custom the club derived the name which has remained with it to the present time. No longer does it gain its nourish count of its excellence in dramatic performances. Once a year it gives a public exhibition, usually at one of Boston's largest theaters, at which is presented a play written and performed by the members. Among recent plays have been the eomic presentations of "Dido and Aeneas," "The Lady of the Lake" and "The Spook and the Spinster."

PECULIAR "SCENIC EFFECTS. First, the famous cave (in which Hymen celebrated the nuptials of the "pious" Aeneas and Queen Dido, amid the thunders of the cavern) is represented by an expansive umbrella, labeled, "This is a cave," under which Dido and Aeneas, two villain ous looking youths, sit looking unutterable things at each other; at the side stands a meek divinity, with a hammer in his hand, which he uses to create thunder by pound ing vigorously upon a sheet-iron surface, which has "Thunder" painted on its front. In "The Lady of the Lake," old Allan Bane sits pensively playing on a diminutive spinnet, while Ellen stands in threatening attitude before her royal guest. "The Spook and the Spinster," a parody on Hamlet," was given last year with great applause.

The club-house is a structure of no great outward presentions, but elegantly equip-ped with all the conveniences of a well-ordered society building. The pictorial decorations form an interesting feature of its interior furnishings; these are the fancy play-bills, which artistic members in times past have wrought out with rare skill and effects.

To these clubs must be added the Porcel

lian and the far-famed Dicky Club.

The Insistence of the Silverites.

(Lafayette Journal.)

The business interests of the country know what alls them. It is not tariff legislation. It is too much of silver bullion purchases which the mine-owners are trying to foist upon the Nation as bi-metallism. The clamor of the business world has been for the repeal of the Sherman law. And yet the spectacle is presented of a minority insisting that if limited silver bullionism will work a cure for existing ills. The logic of this is simply past comprehension.

Asked to Build a Road to Broad Ripple-More Electrical Equipment.

The owners of the Citizens' Street Railroad Company returned East last night. It was announced at the close of the meeting lield yesterday afternoon that nothing definite had been done. R. T. McDonald, into whose name the park at Broad Ripple passed yesterday afternoon, asked the company to build a road to the park at once, but he did not get a definite promise. was told that the company would build to the line as soon as possible, but probably or until next spring.

The company decided to go on with the extensions it had planned to make this year. The Alabama and Central ave. line will be the next one equipped with electricity. The poles along the route are nearly all set and the company expects to be the company expects to be the company expects to the company expects. have cars running on the line within a short time. It was decided to equip the Kentucky ave. line to West Indianapolis with electricity at once.

Messrs. Verner and McKee say there is no authority for the statement that a new president for the road will be elected soon. They say they are satisfied with Mr. Mason and will retain him. It developed at the meeting that there is a lack of harmony between Messrs. Verner and McKee on on side and Messrs. Clay, McDonald and Hol on the other. Messrs. Verner and McKee, it is announced, still own, practically, all the stock in the road. Members of the company say that McDonald and Holt have been anxious to get into the company, but have not succeeded. It is officially stated that neither of them owns any stock in the company. It is said that any stock in the company. It is said that they are connected with the company in an indirect way, as the result of the deal by which McDonald agreed not to build a road to Broad Ripple, but to act instead with the Citizens' company.

For City Engineer.

To the Editor of The Indianapolis News:

I am pleased that our city is impressed with the importance of having a tholoughly competent and reliable civil engineer. From the lack of having such I believe we have suffered in the past, and with the very large amount of money now being expended in sewers and on streets the office is even more important than it has heretofore been. I believe we can do better than to employ a government officer. I believe if the effort is made we can secure a man who will be fully identified with our city and its growth, a former Indianapolis boy, a graduate of our city high school, who afterward completed his course at the Michigan State University, taking his degree of civil engineer, and who for the last fifteen years has steadily worked in the line of the procession. For three years he was stationed at Detroit in the work of the lake survey, and under the supervision of a distinguished United States engineer. Later he was engaged in work upon the New Fork State topographical survey. For a time he was a professor of civil engineering at the Rose Polytechnic, and later occupied the same chair in Union College, at Schenectady, N. Y., and doing in the mean time a considerable amount of engineering work for the New York State Board of Health, as the reports of the board fully attest. I knew him as a boy, and since as a man, and I know him well. His integrity is above reproach; he is a bright, capable man, has had thorough preparation and a wide experience, and I certainly think that in the interest of our people an effort should be made to secure his services. I believe he can be secured and will remove to our city with his family and become one of us in every way; and this, I think, is better than procuring a stranger no better qualified, even If he be an army man. I refer to Charles C. Brown, a son of George P. Brown, formerly superintendent of our city schools and for many years a resident of our city. Franklin Taylor.

SALOON-TAX CONTROVERSY

NORTHWEST INDIANA TOWNS IN-VOLVED-BATTLE AT WHITING.

A Lake-County Town the Scene of a Fight-A Curious Damage Suit -Wabash College-Other Indiana News.

[Special to The Indianapolis News.] WHITING, October 18.—This morning an injunction, granted by Judge Gillette, of the Lake County Circuit Court, was served on the officials of East Chicago restraining them from prosecuting the Whiting saloon-keepers. This is the latest move in the case which has started a bitter feeling between the two towns and which is likely to lead to even more serious difficulty. This mat-teris but two months old and arose from the two-mile limit law which allows Indiana cities to tax all saloons within two miles of the corporate limits. Whiting lies within two miles of h of East Chi-but has no local self-government. Accordingly East Chicago passed an ordinance taxing the Whiting saloon-men $150 per year. Four raids have been made on the liquor dealers and prosecutions begun. East Chicago has been able to maintain only four cases against the Whiting people, and all proceedings have now been stopped by the temporary injunction served to-day. The injunction case will be tried Wednesday of next week.

Some of the most reckless of the saloon men threaten bloodshed it the East Chicago people win the case and send their officers over to enforce the ordinance, though the older men say they will pay the license fee if they are beaten in the courts. An additional interest in the case is lent by the fact that East Chicago is desirous of annexing Roby, Whiting and other adjoining territory, and the threat has been openly made that East Chicago will gobble the adjacent land if it is thwarted in its plan to mulct the saloon-keepers. The annexation scheme will be opposed by the land-owners of Roby, the sporting resort. Whiting people are united in their opposition to the demand of the city, two miles south. Even people with no sympathy with saloons are opposed to having the town bled to the tune of $5,000

WHEAT THE GREAT CROP. The Acreage of Fall Wheat-Low Prices Affect Planting.

[Special to The Indianapolis News.] Moores Hill, October 18.-Varied as the natural products of southeastern Indiana are becoming, wheat continues to be the staple and most general crop. Whatever affects the condition of the wheat yield affects in equal proportion the prosperity of this part of the State. An investigation of the amount of wheat sown, and of its condition, is not out of place. There seems condition, is not out of place. There seems to be a general belief that the acreage of fall wheat is not so great as in some former years. Three causes are assigned for this

"In the first place," says one of the largest dealers in wheat fertilizers, "the price of wheat was low last fall at the time when farmers had to buy fertilizers, and this prevented many from preparing for a large acreage of the new crop. In ordinary years farmers could have borrowed money and bought fertilizers, but the financial depres-sion made this impossible, and here was a second cause. The third reason was the drought. Work for fall wheat was seriously ed in many localities throughout the southern part of the State."
While there is probably a considerable decrease in the number of acres sown, the good condition of the new wheat makes the situation more hopeful by far.

The Fraternities Are Active - Athletic Matters.

(Special to The Indianapolis News.) CRAWFORDSVILLE, October 18,-The fraternities have begun to show the results of the spiking season. The work has been on very conservative lines, each "frat" signing the men carefully and spiking only those whom it felt sure of. Consequently there have been few conflicts. Hench, '97, of Connersville, has joined the Phi Gamma Deltas, and Ireland, '97, of Attica, is a new Alpha Theta Phi. Parry, '96, and Byers, '97, wear the shield and dagger of Phi Delta Theta. A Wabash County Damage Suit With Unusual Features.

(Special to The Indianapolis News.) WABASH, October 18 .- In the Wabash Circuit Court this morning John Sayre, of Papaw township, filed suit for $5,000 damages against Lewis Quick, a neighbor. September 15, while Sayre and his family were driving to Wabash, Quick's dog ran out and frightened a team of horses behind Sayre's carriage, causing them to run away and collide with Sayre's vehicle, overturning it and badly injuring him and his family. The carriage and team were ruined. Quick asserts that the dog did not belong

A Pathetic Sight,
[Special to The Indianapolis News.] JEFFERSONVILLE, October 18 .- A pathetic sight and a strong commentary of married life and divorces was witnessed here at the funeral of Claude Sample, son of Alexander and Sarah C. Sample. Claude Sample had gained a position of trust with York, where he died. Some fifteen years ago his parents were divorced, following a very sensational suit. Mrs. Sample has not since then remarried. Alexander Sample has married twice since, and is now living apparently happy with his third wife. The funeral brought the strangely disrupted family together. The divorced mother and father of the dead youth, together with the third wife were at the grave.

In the trial of the cause the heirs attempted to show that their grandfather was not of sound mind when he made his last will. The suit was not successful. This so disturbed Robertson that his friends applied to court to have him declared of unsound mind. It was not a ghost that Mrs. S. J. True blood and her daughter, Mrs. Bennett, heard the other night. They live on a farm south-east of Russiaville. There seemed to be some one walking about the house, and while Mrs. Trueblood was trying to discover the intruder, the dark lantern of detective romances flashed in her face. Suddenly two wicked looking burglars confronted the ladies. A demand was made for money. The ladies informed them that their money was at Bussiaville. The burglars then asked for their watches, and followed into the house to obtain them. They finally gave up the search and left without securing any booty. Mrs. Bennett had $200 in her hands that she had taken out with her, and, in her fright of being accosted by the ruffians, dropped it on the ground. Mrs. Trueblood also gathered up her valuables, her watch among the rest, and secreted them in her shoes, which she carried out and dropped on the ground. They were all found next morning. Those burglars will probably have dark thoughts when they learn through the public prints how near they came to making a good haul.

HOME FOR FEEBLE-MINDED.

Number of Children the Largest in Its History-Dairy To Be Established.

Alexander Johnson, superintendent of the Home for Feeble-Minded Children at Ft. Wayne, was here to-day. He came to make a settlement with the State and draw money for the maintenance of the institution. A farm of 160 acres has been leased for the home, and is located a mile and a half away. Superintendent Johnson will place upon it about twenty boys and a hero of thirty cows, which will result in a saving of $3,000 a year to the school on the item of milk. The rental amounts to $500 a year and the farm has been leased for five years, and the farm has been leased for five years, with the privilege of purchasing it at the end of that time.

There are 454 children in the home at present, the largest number in the history of the institution. Thirty have entered since Mr. Johnson began his administration, three months ago. There are fitty or sixty applications now on file for admission, and the number is increasing. As soon as the farm is in operation there will be room for twenty more children.

Mr. Johnson is considering the county quota question. Marion county has forty feeble minded youths in his charge. Henry county has twenty-one, Hamilton eleven, and six counties in the State have no representation. There are eighteen counties which have only one child each there. These counties with small or no representation are receiving the preference in admissions. County officials, Mr. Johnson says, are not giving the weal-minded admissions. County officials, Mr. Johnson says, are not giving the weak-minded enough attention. If each county had its quota, the home would have a population of about fifteen hundred. The children were recently vaccinated, and there over 450 sore arms in the school.

AN ENGLISH MYSTERY.

A Remarkable Tragedy of Recent Occurrence-Is De Jone Jack the Ripper? New York Herald.

The theory that De Jong, the murderer of young women in Holland, is the original Jack the Ripper" has been started. It has given a new impetus to the hunt for the odies of his victims. Unless these are found it will be impossible, of course, to convict him. It is awkward, for instance, for a person who has been declared murdered to walk into court and deny that he is dead. No such occurrence is expected in the De Jong case, but it sets a bad precedent to find a prisoner guilty of murder without proving the corpus delicti. De Jong, it would seem, is a more methodical person than "Jack the Ripper," who can have had no other motive for his atroctous deeds than a wild mania for blood. But De Jong killed his victims to get them out of the way after robbing them, so that the field might be clear for further operations. some crim inals have murdered a few sould yet they were not maniacs, though they must seem nearly so to the well-conducted itizen. Since the theory that De Jong is Jack the Ripper," however, has been put afloat, the discovery of the bodies will be awaited with a new interest.

THE DUTCH MYSTERY. The disappearance of Miss Schmitz and Miss Juett, with which the name of the Hollander De Jong is connected, has not been cleared up. Miss Juett, shortly after her marriage to De Jong, disappeared-disappeared, in fact, while on the honeymoon. She had lived at Maidenhead on the Thames. De Jong has had a mysterious sort of existence. At one time he was a porter in a hotel, at another porter at a lunatic asylum. In 1883 he was in Calcutta where he pretended to be an artist; in 1887 he married a girl of seventeen in Rotterdam and when arrested for robbing her mother set up the plea of insanity.

De Jong married Miss Marie Schmitz in July. On August 31 he sold her furniture, pretending that he would buy much better things in England, whither they were to go.
There is no trace of her since August 30.
They had already made one visit to London, and they stayed then at Wheeler's Hotel, Devonshire Square, Bishopsgate street.
Mrs. Wheeler's statement is interesting. She says that De Jong arrived on August 16 from Holland, via Harwich, with two boxes, on one being a brass plate with the name "H. De Jong." Although requested several times to put his name into the visitors' book he did not do so, always pretending to be in a hurry, and at last he gave his visiting card. His behavior in the hotel was most extraording. hotel was most extraordinary. The land-lady describes him as a man who has "some-thing of the mesmerist" in his composition, his eyes always rolling and watching people restlessly. Mrs. Wheeler added that De Jong must have spoken to the lady during ne afternoon in a most disagreeable man ner. As he was speaking Dutch he thought probably that bystanders would not understand him, but in this he was mistaken, for a German waiter who had spent some time in Holland was close by and understood the meaning of De Jong's remarks. The couple seldom went out to-gether. Asked about his conduct on Saturday, August 19, when he went down to Maidenhead, Mrs. Wheeler stated that in the morning he appeared very nervous. He was lavish in distributing cigars among the guests, and threw several on the table. He told his landlady that he was going to see the Dutch consul about some documents, but the consul, when interviewed, said he recollected nothing about the matter. He married Miss Juett on June 15 at Maidenhead. She was a nurse in a neigh-boring hospital when De Jong first mether. Her parents are very well off. Her father now charges him with having swindled him out of £100, and will press the charge in Holland, where De Jong is now in custody. He refuses to answer any questions about the missing women, but the Amsterdam judicial authorities have decided to have hypnotic experiments tried on him in order to obtain information about the missing women. The hypnotizer is also named De Jong, a specialist of The Hague.

The town clerk was asked to advertise in The News for bids for the building of the Glen Drive sewer, and the marshal was instructed to post notices, asking for bids for the painting and erection of the street names.

Master Mechanic Lawler, of the Brightwood shops, says that he has about the same sized force at work now that he had before the recent trouble, and that all excitement is over. Hungate has been a teacher in Wayne township for five years and has for the last three years been principal of the Bridgeport schools. He resigned from this position yesterday. He says he knew nothing of the present trouble until taken from bed Monday night, and that he had only a speaking acquaintance that he had only a speaking acquaintance with Miss Nossman. Hungate is one of Haughville's best-known young men.

This is the foot-hall season, and it's 10 to 1 those chaps are heading for the Athletic Club gymnasium for a little practice work. You come around there with me some afternoon about 5 o'clock, and I'll show you how it happens that the young man of the period neglects his clustering locks at this season of the year. You are not the only man in Chicago whom the football game has eaught napping, and in spite of the tremendous strides the game has taken toward popularity of late years, and a spite of all the colleges have done to disseminate knowledge about its mysteries, while at the same time incidentally dealing ut homeopathic doses of Latin and Greek, here are many worthy people to-day to thom the game appears stupid.

of a tackle bag. For the benefit of such it is best to explain that the tackle bag is a heavy-padded affair, some four fest long, swung by a rope from the celling. Its use seems to be much similar to that of the blowpit, into which new rifles are discharged to test their firing capacity. The tackle bag affords a good safe medium by which a two-hundred-pound player can determine just how much of a swipe it will take to carry him off his pins. The process of operation is as gleesome to watch as an aerobatic show. The bulky player sets the heavy bag a swing through its arc of perhaps twenty-five feet, then slipping back and craftily watching his opportunity, he sfezes the instant when the bag just starts to swing down toward him and makes a dive. Extending both arms and ducking his head he catches the weight of it just at the base of the neck, and the man and bag swing round in a wild gyration that leaves the atmosphere a misty blur.

The rowing machine and the rings also receive a good deal of attention from the men in padded trousers. But the main object of their afternoon meets in the gymnasium is team drill. To an outsider this is the most mystifying of work. The orders under which the men act are often purposely unintelligible to anybody but themselves to deceive the opposing club. It is only very recently that team work has been attempted indoors, Indeed most gymnasia do not have the necessary space for anything of the kind. But in the spacious hall where Captain Alward's men train there is room, and to spare. Of course there is no real playing with another eleven. There is too much apparatus on the floor to permit of such a thing, but the men are stationed in their places and go through the evolutions of various clever plays that are intended to completely outwit the enemy. Captain Alward already has his men in such form that these plays are made with the precision of the dress parade of an army, and no matter in what obscure language the order is couched the frowsy-headed athletes jump to obey without hesi

READY FOR THE WORD "PLAY."

Come around some afternoon and watch the practice work and I'll guarantee that inside of a week you develop into a regular foot-ball fiend, and a touch-down shall arouse as much enthusiasm in your soul as a tenderloin does at present. And with this half-ironical advice the younger man shook hands and made his escape.

"Foot-ball is purely a question of condition and form," so says Captain Alward of the Chicago Athletic Club eleven.

Your true foot-ball player is to a certain extent like the proper style of poet—born, not made—but even an inspired player requires a good deal of currying to lick him into shape for really great—work, and this the college boy gets.

HIS ONE AIM IN LIFE.

HIS ONE AIM IN LIFE. From the moment he enters the prepara-tory school his one aim in life is to play on 'varsity team, and the result is that if he ever does attain that proud honor he omes into the eleven with several years' thorough training, accompanied by hard work and simple living back of him, and he broken neck can send him off the field. But the young business men, from among whom the Athletic Club team must be re-eruited although they may have had the college training are usually softened by several years of comparative idleness, and it takes time to get them back into shape. Then, too, they usually have less time to devote to training than the college boy has, and again they are not quite so young. Twentyone is the ideal age for a foot-ball player, and other things being equal the twentyone-year-olds have a decided advantage over men past twenty-five. They have more spring, more go, and rather more recuperative power. Also, they often lack the experiences born of past injuries and they throw themselves into a scrimmage with more abandon. ege training, are usually softened by several more abandon.

Illustrative of this quality which only rash youth can impart—Peters, who at one time was considered the very flower of Yale's football players, has been seen to come on the practice ground arrayed in a spotless auit of duck. Near by lay a small mountain of soft earth used for grading the field. This caught the eye of the enthusiastic Peters; his face lit up with joy, he cast a single disdainful glance at his over-clean clothes, and then, ducking his head, made a wild spurt for the dirt heap, a final leap that an antelope would have studied for points landed him plump on his hands in the soft, moist earth, his padded legs twinkled frantically for a moment, and then he emerged a rich chocolate color from head to foot and wearing a contented smile that bifurcated the top of his person till it resembled a coffee-pot with the lid half raised. This case is authentic, but the other fable concerning the same player to the effect that he used to hold the tail of a pet mule while it kicked his shinaby the hour to harden them is believed to have had its rise in the the exuberant fancy of a too ardent admirer. But there is plenty of this same quality in the eleven that meets two or three afternoons cach week in the Athletic Club's big gymnasium down on Michigan avenue, and makes desperate attempts to do its individual members some dire bodily discomfort in pure leve of sport.

The big tackle bag that swings sullenly from the high ceiling is responsible for many a tough tumble. The tackle bag is a comparatively recent innovation in gymhasia; that is, there are doubtless gray-haired men now alive whose youth was not made brighter by the beneficent influences the whereabouts of the ball you see that it has been carried far around to the side. And you ponder with ready sympathy over the cheerless lot of the next batch of outof-town players to confront the mysterious workings of the unintelligible order. The team has played four games up to date this season, and their average is just a clear 1,000. So it will be seen that these apparent vagaries have their use on a hard-fought foot ball field. As the men go through their drill about them stand other brawny sub-stitutes, looking on with envious eyes and hoping against hope, that some unforseen chance will bill them to play in the evening game.

"Come on," says one two-hundredpounder, tired of inaction, "let's go over and josh 'em up a bit."

They accordingly cross the glittering floor, their stockinged feet making no noise.

floor, their stockinged feet making no noise, and form themselves into a rather scanty rush line before the drilling eleven. The order is given to play. "Rightguard back!" yelps the captain. Something seems to clog the movement for a moment; it does not go quite smoothly for some reason, and when it finally does go and the tangled heap disintegrates, the "joshing" appears to have been a scintillating success. One player is seated on the floor hugging an injured limb, and he rocks himself softly to and fro in the first enthusiasm of his trouble. But there's no great loss without some small game, and the substitutes reflect with sanguinary satisfaction that one of them will get a chance now. But this worthy wish is defeated by the injured one, who rises stiffly and hobbles back into the ranks with a defiant glare.

INDIANA RAILROAD CASES.

ARGUMENT BEFORE THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

Lawyers Who Will Make It-The History of the Litigation-The Claims Respectively of the State and the Railway Corporations.

[Special to The Indianapolis News.] WASHINGTON, D. C., October 18,-Albert J. Beveridge, John M. Butler and John T. Dye, all of Indianapolis, are in Washington, preparing to argue the cases known as the "railroad tax cases," before the Supreme Court. These cases will probably come up o-morrow, when they will be argued and submitted to the Supreme Court for its decision. The technical titles of the cases are the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Company against Backus as treasurer of Marion county; the Pittsburg Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Rail road Company against Backus and others, and the Indianapolis & Vincennes Railroad Company against Backus and others. They involve the validity of the general tax laws of Indiana, and over a million dollars of taxes are in dispute, this being the amount assessed on about $200,-000,000 worth of railroad property and rollng stock situated in Indiana. If the case s decided against the State the taxes which have been assessed against the property of indiana railroads under this law can not be collected, and the rate against other tax-payers may have to be increased. The same principle which is involved in this case, so the attorneys say, has run through all the tax legislation of Indiana for the past twenty years, and if the case goes against the State the railroad companies can, if they see fit, recover all the taxes assessed against them for many years past.

THE ATTORNEYS IN THE CASE. The railroad companies and the State have employed the best legal talent at their command, and a hard fight is promised when the case is reached. Jonn T. Dye will represent the Big Four's interest in the liti gation. For the Pennsylvania railroad and the Pan-Handle, Butler, Snow & Butler, S. O. Pickens, Burchenal & Rupe and Colonel Stansifer, all of Indiana, are the attorneys. General Counsel Brooks, of Pittsburg, will probably be here during the argument. On the side of the State will be but four at-torneys—Hon. Alonzo Green Smith, the torneys—Hon. Alonzo Green Smith, the Attorney-General of Indiana; Albert J. Beveridge, John W. Kern and William A. Ketcham. The State has won every case in every step from the day suit was brought by the different railroad companies until the present time. The railroad companies have in their employ more than twenty of the best lawyers in Indiana, and distinguished counsel eisewhere, but up to the present time they seem to be on the wrong side of the fence.

John M. Butler and Albert J. Beveridge to day gave a very interesting account of John M. Butler and Albert J. Beveridge to-day gave a very interesting account of the litigation from the beginning to the present time. They said that in 1891 the Legislature passed a general tax law, which took the place of all former tax laws. So far as the taxation of railroad property is concerned the new law does not differ from the old law. The features to which the railroads object have been in operation in Indiana for more than twenty years. This law created a State Board of Tax Commissioners, whose duties are to equalize assessments created a State Board of Tax Commissioners, whose duties are to equalize assessments all over the State, hear complaints of property-owners who appeal to the State board from the assessments of the local authorities and to originally assess the railroad track and rolling stock. The State board in 1801 raised the assessment on all property in the State, including the property of railroad companies, upon the ground that heratofore property has never been assessed at anything like its real value.

THE RAILROADS' CONTENTION. The railroads claim that the law under which the assessment was made violates the constitution of the United States, and that the board treated them illegally and unfairly. They say that the fourteenth amendment forbids any State to deprive any person, including corporations, of their property without due process of law, and that the Indiana law does this, because it provides for the taxation of railroad property without giving the railroads any notice of the assessment or any hearing concerning it. The State answers this by saying that the law gives notice of the time and place of the assessment and requires the railroads to make very full statements concerning their property, and then gives them a right to be heard before the State board concerning their statements, and finally, the right to complain if the assessment doesn't suit them. The railroads say that even if this is so still the board did not, as a matter of fact, give them a hearing, and the State says that the railroads made voluminous statements, as required by law, and the wave attails theory as will be a the railroads. any person, including corporations, of their

and the State says that the railroads made voluminous statements, as required by law, and also were actually heard as fully as they desired by the board.

The companies claim that the fourteenth amendment is again violated because it says that no State shall deny to any one the equal protection of the laws; and that the Indianalaw discriminates against them by giving all other property-owners in Indiana the right to be assessed by the local authorities, and if they are not satisfied they can appeal to the State Board of Tax Commissioners, whereas the railroads are assessed by the State board in the first place and have no appeal. The State answers that as the companies are already before the State board to begin with, there is no use of an appeal. "What is the use of appealing," says the State, "when you are already before the very board to which you want to appeal." And, besides, appeal is not a constitutional right.

THE FURTHER CLAIMS.

THE FURTHER CLAIMS. The railroads bitterly complain that they are subjected to a mode of assessment by which they are taxed on their property in other States, because in valuing their property the board considers their property in Indiana as a part of a great system, as part of great trunk lines. The railroads say the board has no right to think of their road in board has no right to think of their road in Indiana as a part of such a system, but as beginning and ending in Indiana. The State answers that such a method as the railroad demands would never give a fair idea of the road's value; that a part of the Pennsylvania system is worth more than an equal number of miles of some local bank-rupt road, even if the latter were better built than the former. The State says that Governor Matthews's testimony shows that the State board did not assess a dollar of the railroad's property outside of Indiana. The railroad's property outside of Indiana. The railroad slaim also that the Indiana law taxes interstate commerce by considering the roads as interstate roads. But the answer to this is that if that argument is good, an interstate road could not be taxed at all and that a State may tax property within its border, whether engaged in interstate commerce or not.

A VERY IMPORTANT CASE,

A VERY IMPORTANT CASE. This is in brief the substance of the argument which will be presented to the Supreme Court the latter part of this week.
The litigation so far has not been very expensive to the State, although it will probably cost the railroad companies not less than $100,000. It has excited great interest here, as it is one of the most important cases that has appeared before the Supreme Court for a long time, involving a question that has been much mooted and which involves the tax laws of nearly every State. MANY VESSELS WERE LOST.

The Damage Done By the Late Storins

-Fifty People Drowned. CHICAGO, October 18 .- Later reports from the great storm which swept the chain of lakes last Saturday tend to increase the list of disasters. The missing boats are being heard from at all points, and an approximate list of losses can at last be made. Thus far it is known that forty-one people were lost and ten vessels became total wrecks. Twenty-nine more are on the beach or water-logged, and whether they can be saved or not will depend much upon the weather and their position. With these twenty-nine no estimate of losses can as yet be made, but underwriters deem it probable that at least thirteen of them will become total losses. In addition to this long list of casualcies, nearly every boat out in the big storm suffered heavy damages, although they were able to keep afloat and save themselves from going on lee shores. The total lesses, including cargoes, with locality and values, are as follow:

Steamer Dean Richmond foundered off Dunkirk. $110,000 Steamer Wocoken, foundered in Lake Erie. 75,000 Schooner James D. Sawyer, stranded at Charlevoix.

Schooner Minnehaha, stranded at Oneka.....

Schooner Minnehaha, stranded at Oneka.

Schoones Hunter, stranded at New Buffalo.
Schooner Volunteer, stranded at Port Crescenr.

Tug Acme, foundered in Lake Huron.
Schooner Falconer, ashore in Lake Ontario.

Schooner Falconer, ashore in Lake Ontario.

Borge' Knight Templar, stranded at Cheboygan.

Schooner John B. Merill, ashore on Drummond's island.

To this list must be added two schooners, which are not yet identified. One is sunk in Lake Erie, eight miles off Port Colborne.

She is thought to be the F. C. Leighton, of Port Huron. The other is sunk four miles north of the Persian islands, on Lake Superior. Only the top of the masts of both north of the Persian Islands, on Lake Su-perior. Only the top of the masts of both boats are above the water, and it is likely that their crews, numbering six or eight men for each, were lost. This will make the total number of lives lost in the great storm fifty-four. The aggregate losses on the boats stranded, but which may be the boats stranged, but which may be rescued, and on cargoes damaged by water, will exceed $300,000. This was the estimate of a conservative underwriter after he had gone over the list carefully. To these big figures must be added losses of not less than $50,000 for minor damages, many of which will never be expected in viit. This remarks will never be reported in print. This grand total of fity-four lives and $675,000 of property will add the storm of October 14 to the list of historic gales on the great lakes.

Bodies Floating In the Lake. ERIE, Pa., October 18 .- The schooner Rube Richards, which took shelter under Long Point during the storm, put in here Tuesday. The captain reports passing a dozen floating bodies on the way over, but owing to the crippled condition of his boat he could not pick them up.

REAUTIFUL LANDSCAPR. Lark open until 11:41 p. m. SEEN AT THE THEATERS

'Ruy Blas" at English's-"Jupiter" at The performance of Victor Hugo's fine play "Ruy Blas," at English's Opera House, last night was well worth seeing. Unlike "Lucrezia Borgia" and other works of this dramatist, there is not felt in the earlier scenes the hopelessness of a happy issue. So favored by fortune does the mock Don Casar seem through three of the four acts— so easily does he assume the dress, position and emoluments of the absent Don-that they seem rightly to belong to and emoluments of the absent Donthat they seem rightly to belong to him. For this reason the outcome is all the more tragic. Rny Blas, "with the garb but not with the soul of a lackey," is shorn in one moment of his wealth and power. In the accomplishment of his ruin Hugo makes use of a favorite means of intensifying the fatality of circumstances by making him the cause of his own downfall.

The apparently meaningless papers signed by the lackey as his first task under Don Salluste, and forgotten in the rush and hurry of after-events, become the instrument by which he loses fortune, love and life. "His own deeds are his own doomsmen." Somewhat curiously, one's sympathies are always with the usurper. So much more fitted by nature to grace the station of a courtier than the real Don Casar, his relinquishment of the fulse position is the hight of tragedy.

Mr. Vroom succeeds better as Buy Blas than as Don Casar. While he did not exhaust the possibilities of the former character—few acters could—he played understandingly and with even effort. His elocution was exceptionally good, and evinced standingly and with even effort. His elocution was exceptionally good, and evinced appreciation of the intrinsic worth and beauty of single passages. He was thoroughly imbued with the romantic spirit of the times. Mr. Vroom makes much of the slight means possible by which Ruy Blas is distinguished from Don Cresar. As Don Cresar, he can speak different lines and wear the costume of a brigand, but must at the same time so act as to maintain with consistency the remarkable resemblance consistency the remarkable resemblance supposed to exist between the men. To preserve in many outward manifestations a similarity and yet to differentiate is not an easy task. While Ruy Blus was more strongly defined, more individual, Mr. Vroom did not lose the one character in

The correctness of Miss Gifford's con-The correctness of Miss Gifford's conception of her part can not be called into question. She makes gentleness and loyal submissiveness the queen's chief attributes. These are precisely the qualities which have excited the adoration of the lackey. But Miss Gifford fails to distinguish between repose, which has been termed a live quiet and inaninity. She moved and spoke with monotonous sameness, in the last act especially failing to produce more than a passing impression. She looked and dressed the part admirably.

"Ruy Blas" is almost a one-part play, so that the members of Mr. Vroom's company are not called upon to do more than second his attempts to give a truthful production. Handsome costumes and appropriate scen-

So far the youngsters have been orderly to a remarkable degree. The committee of ladies having charge of the arrangements for an outing of the newsboys and bootblacks are meeting with success. They will meet down down to-morrow at 8 o'clock, and come to the Fair on two special trains on the Illinois Central road. They will be provided with Ferris-wheel badges, which will pass them through the turnstiles free.

They will be provided with Ferris wheel badges, which will pass them through the turnstiles free.

There is every indication that Manhattan Day at the Fair will be second only to Chicago Day. From reports received it is estimated that over 100,000 New York people will arrive have to celebrate. Mayor Gilroy, is expected to arrive at the Fair to-morrow, and will at once meet the New York State commissioners and make the final arrangements for the exercises. The speech-making will take place in Festival Hall, which will accommodate many thousand people.

The opening prayer will be offered by Dr. Morgan Dix. Mayor Carter Harrison, of Chicago, is down for the speech of welcome. He will be responded to by Mayor Gilroy, of New York. Addresses will also be made by Gen. Horace Porter, Dr. Chauncey M. Depew, Charles S. Smith and Seth Low. Hon. Bourke Cockran is here assisting in the completion of the exercises and will be urred to make a speech. There will be plenty of vocal and orchestral masic, and Archbishop Corrigan will pronounce the benediction. It is intended to add other features to the program. The ceremonies are intended to be short, so as to allow visitors time to see something of the Fair. Special Manhattan Day tickets and badges have been prepared.

The events of the evening will be open and lighted. Fireworks will be set off and the parade will be gorgeous, Chicago Day floats have been tendered for the occasion, and others typical of New York and the Governor's party. The Fair officials are doing everything they can to aid the committee having the arrangements in hand.

MUNICIPAL CIVIL SERVICE.

MUNICIPAL CIVIL SERVICE. The Subject Discussed at the Meeting of the Century Club.

At the meeting of the Century Club last night Charles W. Moores discussed "The Opportunity for Civil Service Reform in Our City Government." He said that the fact that the new mayor had been elected independent of partisan politics, and that the city charter required that city em-ployes be selected with regard to personal fitness, afforded abundant reason for seizing ployes be selected with regard to personal fitness, afforded abundant reason for seizing the present opportunity for civil service reform. Mr. Moores described the system in operation in Boston and said that the published reports of the operation of civil service laws in municipal government indicated that the constant tendency was toward permanency in the service. Civil service reform methods, he said, were practicable, for they have succeeded elsowhere under similar conditions; they were desirable, for they protected the city, the mayor and the employes; they were "good politics," because they relieved the party in power from the danger of unwise appointments, and they were required by law, and the "laws must be enforced."

The subject was discussed by J. P. Dunn, W. L. Taylor, L. B. Swift and others. In the course of the discussion it was shown that the number of men employed in the city street department increased from 150 to 324 just prior to the election, and that the pay-roll amounted to $4,000 a week. Laborers received $1.60 a day for eight hours' work, while private contractors pay $1.25 for ten hours' work. City teams receive $3.75 for eight hours, while private teamsters draw $3 for ten hours. Mr. Taylor further showed that eity work really represents less than seven ten hours. Mr. Taylor further showed that eity work really represents less than seven hours a day, inasmuch as time going to and from work, lounging and resting during rains is all counted in at full rates. In prosperous times only old men as a rule worked on the streets, as younger men preferred other labor if they could get it, and did not find street labor congenial, because it was formerly done by the chain-gang.

The general opinion expressed by mem-The general opinion expressed by members of the club was that reforms were certainly desirable, and that the mayor had ample authority under the charter to begin them.
